

Glasgow
University Library

Ferguson Collection
1921

Ao - b. 47.

Glasgow
University Library

Ferguson Collection
1921

Ao - b. 47.

F

June 6 - 1887

2203

THE
ART
OF J. Hockley
CHYMISTRY,

Written in Latin by
GEORGE PHÆDRO.

And done into English by
NICHOLAS CULPEPPER
Student in Physick and Astrology.

The Third Edition.

L O N D O N,

Printed for Simon Neale at the Sign of the three Pidgeons in Bedford street in Covent Garden, 1674.

THE

A. R. T.

CHYMISTRY

Written in French by

GEORGE LEBLANC

And here into English by

NICHOLAS C. LEBLANC

Student in Physics and Chemistry

THE

UNIVERSITY

GLASGOW
UNIVERSITY LIBRARY:

PERusing those Learned Pieces of Basilus Valentinus, Roger Bacon, Isaac Holland, and other excellent Learned men, collected by Peter John Faber, Dr of Physick of Monspelier, and published together, finding George Phaedros Works inserted amongst them, I thought it not impertinent to prefixe the testimony of that Learned Physitian, Dr John Faber concerning him, in his owne words, in the third page
 of his argument of the whole Worke, in his Curru Trium- phali.

*Scripsit Georgius Phædro Tractatum unicum, & doctissimum
de Theoria, & practica Lapidis sa-pientum, & qui eum Tractatum
ritè intelliget, verè & certè sciret, totam artem nostram. In hoc enim Tractatu quicquid de lapide Sapi-entum dici potest, clarissimè manife-statur, inter Medicos celeberrimos & Philosophos nominatur, & ipse Medicus Celebris vocatur.*

G. I. B. M.

To

To the courteous or candid
R E A D E R.

Having found among the Books of my Fathers Library, the manuscript of that Famous Physitian, called George Phadro, written by his own hand, w^{ch} lay hid a long time in darkness, as an useles burthen unto the earth; I thought, that an Art

otherwise excellent and usefull, is lame and defective, unlesse it be put unto the Practicke: and this is the reason why
I perused and caused it to be printed.
For it is well knowne, that good counsels, if kept within the breast, are for no good unlesse they be imparted unto

To the Reader.

those that have need of them. Thus this Worke lay hid, set downe in paper, and collected for that purpose, that those which are taken ill might be cured, and doubtlesse he in his Calling did doe his best he could. Why should we conceive any other, but that that industrious and Learned man, George Rhadro, my deare Father, hath intended by these his Labours nothing else, but that they might be for the good of his sick neighbours and fellow Christians? And that hee in his experimentall knowledge hath found to cure the diseased quickly, safely, and sweetly, the same medicaments should be communicated unto posterity? There are some men indeed, if they have gotten any secrets, they keep them for themselves, as if they had found some rare and new invented Art, and condemne it to a perpetuall silence. How envious their mind is to the publick good, is sufficiently knowne : I thought it good to com-

To the Reader.

communicate these to the Students of Physick, that they might serve, being published, for the good of such that are diseased, and be helped thereby. The which to effect the better, these here and there scattered members I have reduced into one Body, being set down by peeces, and conscribed in a promiscuous stile, (some in Latine, the most in the German tongue) reduced them into one Language, and brought them into Order, that they might not be tedious unto the Reader. This my smal Labour I desire to be recommended unto all good men, praying to accept it in good part.

John George Schenkius

of Graffenberg,

Dr of Physick.

THe Reader is advertised, not to take distaste of the strange ingrediencies at the first view,
which are put into some of the Receipts (as when he writeth, take of our Mysterium, of our Liquor, of Ophirizum, of this and of that Essence, &c.) because the manner how they are prepared and composed, is set downe in the little Treatise of this Book, called Furnus Chymicus.

A Catalogue of the Cures performed by the speciall good Medicaments of George Rhadro,
a Famous Physitian.

The Chymicall Practicke containeth these following Cures.

THE cure of Agues.

The cure of the Plague.

A composition of the camphor & liquor of the Treacle.

The cure of the Head-ach.

The cure of Delirium, or distractedness of the Braine.

The cure of Epilepsia.

The severall Gouts cure, as of Apoplexie, Palsie, and of the beginnings of any such con-
tractures. vix. of the Cholicke, the Illiac Passion, and of other affects, as of the Stiper, Spasmus, tremor, &c.

A description of rectified Aquavita.

A singular remedy for the Cramp.

A Catalogue

To cure any rheume or defluxion of any humour.

The true way to make the Panchimagogum.

To cure all manner of defects of the eyes.

To cure deafnesse.

To restore a lively colour to the face.

To cure the bleeding Flux.

To cure the Tooth Ague.

To cure the scurvy or foulness of teeth.

To cure the Squiney.

To cure the Hidgecock (phlegmon of the diaphragme.)

The cure of the Gout.

An unguent for the dissolving of old tartareous Knots.

To cure sleepinesse or Lethargy.

To cure the consumption of the Lungs.

To cure shortnesse of breath.

To cure the stoppage of the Breast.

To cure the Pleurisie.

To rectify an ill digesting Stomack.

To cure the Spleen.

To cure the Dropsie.

To cure the Jaundise.

To cure the burning of the throat.

To stay Vomiting.

To cure the stone Colicke.

To cure the constipation or the stones of the entrails.

To

of the Cures.

- ny hu To cure a loosnesse.
To expell worms.
gum. To cure the Emroids before and behind, and the dry chaps in hands and feet.
To cure the itching unto copulation in Women.
To cure the Impasthumes of the reins and of the bladder.
To cure the gravell or stone.
To cure the Carcinoma of the Matrix.
o di- To expell the false conception.
To cure the Ruptures.
are- To cure the suffocation of the Mother.
To cure the Hysterical affects; the suppression of the monethly courses and their immoderate
running, and of the whites.
The composition of the uterine Elixer.
To cure barrennesse.
To cure the venereall disease.
To mend baldnesse.
To cure an exulceration in the throat.
To firme teeth that are loose.
To cure a virulent running of the Reins.
To cure botches about the privy Members.
To cure Leprosie.
To cure an ill coloured skin, overrunning the face, and to get off some nastiness of the hair.
the To cure the scabs.

To

A Catalogue

To cure the Cramp.

To cure venomous contagious symptoms.

The curing of St Antonics fire.

To cure imposthumes.

To cure ulcers.

To heale contumacious Ulcers, which will not shut, by reason of a wild or rotten flesh
and other defects.

To cure a wound.

A vulnerary unguent.

A proper oyle for wounds.

A proper Balsame for wounds.

A Medico-chymicall cure of the falling sick-nesse.

A cure of the Plague of Galenicall and Chymicall materials, containing these following.

Prophylacticum, or a defensive against the Plague.

A potion against the Plague.

An Electuary for the Pest.

A Balsame for the Plague.

The Cœlestiall treacle against all kinds of poison.

The olympick or wonderfull plaister.

of the Cures.

In the lesſer Surgery the following things are to be noted, beſides the noble ſcope of curing.

- T Hree ſorts of open ſores, and their Phyſi-
call cure. 63
- The firſt is ſuch, how it is cured.
- The ſecond is ſuch, how its cure is.
- The third is ſuch, and the manner of its cure.
- A vulnerary decoction.
- A vulnerary Wine.
- The eſſence of Imperatoria.
- The ſecret of ſemli Cancrorum.
- The eſſence of the myſtery of Tartar.
- How the heavenly cure ought to be divided.
- An explication of the Specifick cure.
- The quality of Hypericon.
- The vertue of red Corals, and of the blood of pickrels.
- The vertue of Sydericum.
- The operation of a ſilver money made of Mercury.
- The effects of the great Comfrey, of March-mallows, of Mercurialis, and of Chameleon
the blacke.

A Catalogue

In the Treatise of the Chymicall Furnace these secrets are contained.

- THE liquor of Gold. 79
The essence of Wine and of Herbes
whereof Aquavits are made.
The liquor of Ophirizum.
The oyle of Pearles.
The tincture of Corals.
The essence of Antimony.
The secret of the Quinsessence.
Of Mercurius dulcis.
Of the spirit of Vitriol.
Of Tarsar.
Of the philosophick sales.
Of the extract of Satyrium.
Of Mumia.
Of the Hermaphrodite.
Of the preparation of sal gemma, and of the water of Salt.
Of the essence of Sol spirit of Wine.
Of salt of Wine.
Of alcoholised Spirit of Wine.
Of the essence and forme of wines.

The

of the Cures.

The manner of drawing the essence from herbes.

Of the diaphoretick gold.

Of the preparation of Mummy.

Of the Turbith Minerall.

Of the Alchool of Wine.

Of the oyle of Gold.

Of the diaphoretick Spirit of Tartar.

Of the oyle of Saturne and of its sal.

Of the essence of Antimony.

The use of the essence or tincture of Antimony.

Theophrastus his Laudanum Opiatum
which he made use of as a specificum against all Agues, found among the secrets of Phaedro.

The oyle of Arsenick and its use.

Butter of Sol for the Eschara.

Precipitated Aquila.

The purging of Sal Armonick.

Aqua fort.

The rectifying of Aqua fort.

The purging of Mercury.

The purging of Antimony.

The rednesse of Antimony.

Oyle of wax is instead of a Balsame for healing of wounds.

Dissolved Unicorne.

The

THE Medico-Chymicall Practise
OF
GEORGE PHÆDRO,
A famous Physitian.

The Cure of Agues.

R Ecieve Aloes Succocitrine, ʒ i. of red Myrrhe ʒ of English Saffron ana ʒ i.
of our Mysterium gr. iii. Make hereof Imperiall pills N: 15, with the iuyce or water of Wormwood; let the Patient take three of them before the Paroxisme, for the evacuating of the vitious matter of the Ague,
which in some part being largely and farre
B spread,

spread, seemeth to have posselt or taken the whole body.

But if that destroying Disease is gotten into the broyling blood of the Veines and Arteries, then Phlebotomize the partie before the sit, breathing the Basilik Veine, or rather the Cephalick, which is more safe, or let the Patient be scarified, applying Cupping Glasses: our Mysterium is as any of the Universals, as the tincture of Sol, of Corals, Pearles, Essence of Antimonic.

The cure of the Plague.

R. Of the liquor of camphorated Treacle \mathfrak{z} i f. oile of Pearl, gr. vi. of red Corals \mathfrak{z} i. of Turpentine gut. iii. of Janiper berries oyle, gut. 3. of the essence of Celandine, \mathfrak{z} f. of the waters of the root of Coltsfoot, of Eringo, ana \mathfrak{z} i. of the flowers of Elder of Hearts-eale, ana \mathfrak{z} f. of red Wine which is very sweet \mathfrak{z} ii f. of our Mysterium gr. i. Make hereof a Diaphoretick potion.

The liquor of Camphorated Treacle is made thus :

Recip. Of Treacle \mathfrak{z} ii. l. of red Myrrhe \mathfrak{z} x. of orientall Saffron \mathfrak{z} ii. of Camber \mathfrak{z} i. of distill'd wine \mathfrak{z} v. Let these be still'd according to Art.

The Cure of the Head-ach.

Recip. Of Arsmart growing about Villages M. ii. l. of Mouse-eare, of Betony,
M. l. of Sengreen M. i. of Night-shade
l. of Rose-water a sufficient quantity, these be boiled together, and let there be ed to it, of red Corals \mathfrak{z} i. of prepared ules \mathfrak{z} l. Make of it a Cataplasme apply to the head so long, till all the paine be yed.

Recip. Of Arsmart M. i. Of Mouse-eare
Let these be boiled in \mathfrak{z} x. of Betony-er, let one moiety boile away, let it be ned, and prest out.

Recip. Of this strained liquor \mathfrak{z} v. of the of Juniper Berries, gut. v. of our My-um, gr. i. Make a Potion of it.

The Cure of Madnesse.

Recip. Of our Myſterium gr. i. of rectified Aqua vitæ gut. v. of Arſmart ʒ iii. Make a potion of it, which the party muſt uſe long till the madneſſe be gone, and the uſe of reaſon be reſtored.

The Cure of Epilepſie, or Convulſion.

R*Ecipe.* Of our Myſterium gr. i. of prepared Pearles ʒ i. of the uterine Eliſ gut. v. of Pæonic-water a ſufficient quantity. Make a Potion of it, which muſt be given to the Epileptick party before the Paroxiſme; and after the Paroxiſm let the lower part of the head be anointed with a ſame, in which is Oile of Turpentine of Stalactic Galban lb ſ. Gumme of El or of Ivy ʒ iii. Let theſe be diſtilled, throwing away the Feces and Phlegme.

Gutta ejuſque ſpecies; the Gout and its kinde.

As Apoplexie, Palfie, the contracture of any part, and their beginnings, or the cure

ine, Iliack passion, and such like Sym-mes; as Numness, Cramp, Trembling:
e party is to take a Potion as well at the tring into the Bath, as at the comming
rth of it; in which Potion is, of our recti-
d Aqua vitæ gr. v. of Dracunculus Augu-nus ʒ i. of our Mylterium gr. i. s. make a Potion.

The Rectified Aqua vite.

R Ecipe Of the juyce of Dracunculus Augustanus, of Baulme, of Celandine, both Snees-worts ana lb i. Of all kinds of epper ʒ i. of Cloves ʒ ii. of Cubebs, Giner, ana ʒ i. s. of Cinamon ʒ ii. of Mace ʒ i. s. of yrrho ʒ ii. of Bean-ashes ʒ v. of honey-water ʒ vi. of rectified distilled wine lb v.
et these bee infused for nine dayes, and eparated in a Pellican, unto the Spirits:
hen take this distilled liquor.

Recip. Of Roses, flowers of Rolemary, Sage, of Hearts-ease, of Marjoram, of erbalcum (Mugwort) ana ʒ i. s. of Zedo-e, of the best Cinamom ʒ ii. of Mace, of nutmegs ana ʒ i. s. of Cloves ʒ ii. of Cuebs ʒ i. of Amome ʒ ii. of Paradise-graines
vi. of Civet ʒ i. s. of Amber ʒ ii. of Melech

B 3

gr. vi.

gr. vi. Macerate them in Ashes for the dayes, separate, and keep the distilled
quer in a glass well stopp'd.

The following Balsam must be continue for a month.

Recip. Of the root of Swallow-w lb ii. of ground-Dwarfe (Danewort) lb of Gentian lb i. of red Fearn ʒ iiij. T
Herbe of Dracunculus Augustanus, Baulme, of Celendine ana M. ii. of Lave
der, of Arlesmart, of Eupatorium, of Arch
tick Ivy ana M. iiij. of Perwinckle M ij.
Flammula, of red Rocket ana M. ij. s. of Flowers of the Lillies of the valley, of C momil, of Verbascum, of the lesser Cen rie, of Prunella, of Betony ana M. i.
Hemp-seeds lb i. of Poppy ʒ i. Of Celestiall water, or of our Indicum, a su
cient quantity: after the Bath let the affe
ed Members be anointed with the follow Unguent.

Of Opopanax lb i. of Galbanum of Sagapenum ʒ iiij. of Ammoniack ʒ
of Bdellium ʒ i. Let these be dissolved Vinegar, strained, and an oyle of it distill
according to Art, adde therunto of Oyle Turpentine lb i. l. of the Philosophick o
ʒ liii. of the oyle of Bayes, of Junip
tor

ana lib. s. of Spick \mathfrak{z} i. of Cantharides \mathfrak{z} v.
 of both sorts of Pepper \mathfrak{z} iiij. of Cardamom \mathfrak{z} ij. of fresh Castoreum \mathfrak{z} iij. of Euphorbium \mathfrak{z} ij s. of Mastix, Frankincense ana \mathfrak{z} iiij.
 of Myrrhe lib. s. Let these be distilled in the manner of an oyle, adde thereunto of liquid Storax \mathfrak{z} i. s. of the spawn of Frogs, of Frogs gendred in leaves num. xx. of earth-wormes, of the grease of a Badger, of a Fox, of a Wild-Cat, of a Bear, ana \mathfrak{z} iiij. of Deeruet, or of a Stag \mathfrak{z} iiij. of Barrowes grease \mathfrak{z} ii. of the best Vinegar, and of distilled Wine ana \mathfrak{z} i. s. Distill these againe. let the following Fomentation be used, either in stead of a Bath or of an Unguent.

Rx. Of the grease of a Badger, of Cala-mitium of Frogs, of oyle of Olives lib. s.
 of Janiper \mathfrak{z} v. of Mastix, of Myrrhe, ana
 lib. i. of Salt \mathfrak{z} ij. of Turpentine \mathfrak{z} vi. Mingle these, burne them well in a kettle, lay the affected member over it, staying it with a convenient instrument, let it be well covered, lest the vapours goe away, doing no
 good: if the Fomentation cooleth, heat it againe; this must be continued for twelve hours every day. Thus the iuyce of Flammula being distill'd, and taken mornings and evenings, will in a short time cure that symp-tome.

This following Receipt is good against the Cramp.

Recip. Of the Officula cut in the mid of white Snails, of Hares-knuckle ana \mathfrak{z} ij. of prepared red Corals \mathfrak{z} s. ming these :

R. Of this powder \mathfrak{z} i. of our Myster um gr. i. Water of the Ocymus Caryof phyllatus \mathfrak{z} iij. Make a Potion of it, which must be often iterated, the Officles (shells)
must be well heated, or made hot in th
hand, then the parts tormented with th
Cramp will the sooner be eased, and free
from that stretching and contraction.

Of distilling Rheumes in Mans body.

Recip. Of our Panchimagogum, of cham great Frankincense, of prepared rean Corals ana \mathfrak{z} i. of Chalcantin Sulphur gr. i of the juyce of Arismart, of the whitest su gar, ana a sufficient quantity. Make a Cha tactick bole of it : or,

R. Of our Panchimagogum, of the im periall Pills, ana \mathfrak{z} i. of the Species, o precious stones, of Diamosnum ana \mathfrak{z} s. cha

Opian

Opium gr. i. Make pills of it with the juyce of Lemons.

Our Panchimagogon is made thus,

Recipe. Of Spirit of Wine lib. i. Of Species of Diambra \mathfrak{z} i. Infuse these for fourteen dayes, digest it in the Sunne, let the Vessels be well stoppt, this spirit is ting'd with a deep red: shake it every day three or foure times, then cast off the spirits from the Species of Diambra: digest it in a Balmy for a fennight or fortnight.

The following things purge the skin.

R. Of fresh Scammonie \mathfrak{z} l. of the best Rhubarb \mathfrak{z} iii. \mathfrak{z} i. of Colocinth \mathfrak{z} v. or \mathfrak{z} l. of the best Agarick \mathfrak{z} iii l. of Turbith \mathfrak{z} l. of Hermodactils \mathfrak{z} ii. l. of the black sneezewort \mathfrak{z} ii. Of Sene leaves \mathfrak{z} i. of Mastix, of myrrhe, red roses, of Fennel-seeds, of Anise reana \mathfrak{z} i. l. These being grinded and steeped, must be put in a linnen bagge, and prest in a pewter Presse: dissolve in this expression, of Aloes Succotrina \mathfrak{z} xii. at last let this Wine evaporate in a Balmy, and a spissitude in the bottome will be left as thick as honey, Of this Compound may be taken halfe a Scruple, or a whole one, in Malmey, or with other pills aggregative. Adde ther unto some drops of Chalcantin oyle.

strengthen its purging quality.

*Against all manner of symptoms
of the Eyes.*

Recipe. Of white Lythargyre, of Alu men plumosum, of extinct Tutia, an 3 i. of waters of Eye-bright, of Speedwe
of Fennell ana 3 i. f. of flowers of whit Verbena, of Succory, of Cyanus ana 3 i of Camphore 3 i. f. These being beaten distill them: with this distilled liquor we
a linnen Cloth, and thus cold wash the eye
with it: The leaves of the Verbena beari
whitish flowers, must be worne about th neck like a neck-cloth for nine dayes. Wit or by this Amulet are perfectly cured Ep
phora, alias Lachrymæ (teares,) opthalmi
or Lippitudo, or rheume in the eye, and o ther symptomes of the eye. The Pearle
the eye is instantly cured, if a piece of th
root of Taraxicus belaid on the tongue: cl
if any humorous matter runneth in the eye
eating and consuming the white of the eye
is healed, if the clay of Anatolia, seale
with the hand of the Turkish Emperour,

per in lieu of it, the chalk of Malta, be dissolv'd
in Rose-water and applyed.

The cure of Deafness.

Recip. Of Earth-worms, of Saws, of each \mathfrak{z} iii. of an Oxe-Gall \mathfrak{z} i. f . Distill it per Alembick. Add thereunto the essence of black sneeze-wort \mathfrak{z} i. the juyce of Rhu-barbe prest forth with the oyle of bitter Almonds \mathfrak{z} i. f . oyle of Camphire \mathfrak{z} i. f . of the seeds of Nigella, of Hyosciamus, of Poppy, ana \mathfrak{z} f . of the water of the flowers of the lesser Centorie \mathfrak{z} ii f . of Celandine \mathfrak{z} f . of Hungarish Saffron \mathfrak{z} i.

To restore the lost colour of the face.

Recip. Of the water of the flowers of Rosemary, of the two sorts of Betony, ana \mathfrak{z} ii. of the Herbs of Verbena, \mathfrak{z} iii. of Wormewood \mathfrak{z} i. of the root of Polypodium \mathfrak{z} ii. f . of our Mysterium gr. i. Make a large lotion against the Nitrous Colours of the face.

Against

Against Bleeding.

R Ecip. Of the root of whites enicle \mathfrak{z} i. of Hempleed, of Milke, a sufficient quantity : Boil these and preis them out of that expression Rx. \mathfrak{z} iiii. of Chalcanthin Sulphur, gr. ii. of our Mysterium gr. i. Make a Potion ; outwardly apply to the thighes, if men ; but if women, to the belly, the following hot decoction so long till the bleeding be stayed.

Rx. The rindes of the best root of Henbane \mathfrak{z} l. of Vinegar of Roses a sufficient quantity.

Against Tooth-ache.

THe Anodyn Balsam must be used, or else let the teeth be often washed with the following warme decoction.

Rx. Of the root of Asismart M. v. of Solanum M. ii. of the seeds of Staphisagria \mathfrak{z} l. Of Plantaine-seeds \mathfrak{z} i. of the rinde of the root of Tamar. \mathfrak{z} l. of Henbane \mathfrak{z} iii. of the root of Tormentilla \mathfrak{z} ii. of Rose-Vinegar \mathfrak{lb} i. of red wine \mathfrak{lb} ii. Let these be well boiled : Phlebotomy and Scarification must be used also: and if it be a hollow tooth which paineth the partie, put into it Frogs-grease, that paine will be allayed for ever.

Against rottenesse of Teeth.

Recip. Of the juyce of Plantayn, or of a decoction made of it with wine, of Celandine, of the golden Comfry, of Dracunculus Augukan ana ζ iii. of Oxy mel i. quart. of Aloes ζ i. f. of Alome ζ ii. Make a Gargarisme, which must be used daily: if the teeth doe stink and are growne black, and the gummes are swell'd, full of humors, then take the Ashes of Rosemarie-stalkes, put them into a cleane Linnen, wipe them daily with it, continuing it for five or six dayes: if those humours retarne, then you must continue the use of this Medicine.

Against the Squinzie.

Recip. Jewes-eares, grown on Elders ζ f. Let these be steeped over night in water of Prunella ζ v. presse it out, adde to it of our Mysterium gr. i. and give to the partie this Potion: Let the party daily gargarise garile three or foure times with this following warme Gargarisme.

R. Of Urine of man \mathfrak{z} i. of the iuyce of Hypericon \mathfrak{z} ii. of Arsemart \mathfrak{z} iii. of Prunella \mathfrak{z} i. l. of Oxymel Seylliticum lib. i. In the interim, if the parties tongue be furr'd, or the throat be fill'd with clamminesse, let it be rubb'd with a Scarlet cloth, that it bleed: if any tumor apparent and great paines be accompanied with it, then use this Cataplasme.

R. Of Jewes-Eares \mathfrak{z} l. of the root of Dwarf-Elder \mathfrak{z} i. l. of Arsemart M. i. of Rose-Vinegar, a sufficient quantity: adde thereto of Camphor \mathfrak{z} l. make a Pulvis. Let these be boiled, and add of our Mysterium gr. ii. This Decoction is against the Inflammation of the throat.

Against the Heart-groaning of Children.

R Ecip. Of the lesser Water-Cresses M. i. of Wine or Water, a sufficient quantity. Let it be boiled, and adde to it of our Mysterium gr. ii. Make a Potion against the Inflammation of the Breast. This decocted Herbe is applyed as a Pulvis to the place affected.

To cure the Gout.

Ecip. Of Aloes, being washed nine times, of the Decoction of the midler Camfry $\frac{3}{4}$ i. s. of our Mysterium gr. xiv. of Myrrhe, of white Frankincense ana $\frac{3}{4}$ s. red Corals, or in lieu of them, of prepared Sarda, f transparent Citrine, } Caribis, } ana $\frac{3}{4}$ s.

 } Amber, }

Of the best Unicorn gr. iiii. of the best ofsch gr. ii. of ordinary Saffron. gr. vii. make a masse of Pills with the juyce, or the dissolved Salt of Arsemart, hereof are made pills of the bigness of Raffus his Pest-pills, two whereof are ministered morning. The midler Solidage or Camfry being boiled, and the Arsemart express'd, must be put between two Tiles and covered with Dung, externally applyed, if the paines be extreame; the Anodyn Ointment heated.

R. Of oyle of Cloves $\frac{3}{4}$ ii. of Juniper berries, of Sulphur Chalcantin, ana $\frac{3}{4}$ i. these must be distilled per Alembick, allunctures being well luted: adde there-

Of Tile-Oyle $\frac{3}{4}$ ii. of Turpentine quart i.

quar. i. of fresh Castoreum, of Opium, ana ʒ
 of Saffron ʒ ii. Distill this againe gently you have an Anodyn Oyle, wherewith the affected place is anointed: or take a Lythagyr prepared with Alome and Rose-water lb i. boile it in water of the Spawn of Cray fishes, and May-dew, or Rain-water to thickness of honey, adde thereto of the juyce of Cray-fishes, ʒ quart i.

Gammara,

Of the Herb of Arselmart lb f. of Solanum (nightshade) of Sempervivum or House leek, of the Water-Lillie, ʒ ana ʒ i.
 flowers of Nenuphar, ʒ

Of Henbane boiled ʒ ii f. of oyle of Poppy
 seed ʒ i f. Boile these againe to a thicknes
 at last adde to it of Opium steeped in oyle of Bayes, and Juniper, for some dayes and strained ʒ vi. of Camphore ʒ i f. of Myrrhe
 of Frankincense, ana ʒ f. make of it an Ano-
 dyn Unguent, and it must be macerated
 in a well-stopped Glasse at the heat of the Sun
 for a Moneth, after the place affected, must be anointed with it warme.

(17)

For the dissolving of old tartareous knots
and stones; the following ointment must be applied daily once or twice.

Rx. Of the liquor of Mumia quart i. of the sweet oyle of chalcianthum (vitriol) $\frac{3}{4}$.
of the spirit rectified of Tartar; mixe
these; Or;

Rx. Of the liquor of Mumia quart i. of the oyle of Juniper berries, $\frac{3}{4}$ x. of Turpentine. $\frac{3}{4}$ ij $\frac{3}{4}$. mix these.

Against sleepinesse.

R Ecip. Of our Mysterium gr. i. of oyle
of Pearles, gr. vi. of boyled Roman cole, sweetned with the whitest Sugar. $\frac{3}{4}$ B.
make a bole of it, which must frequently be used or taken.

Against the rottenesse of the Lungs, and stinking breath.

R Recip. Of our Mysterium, gr. i. of oyle of Juniper Berries, gr. v. of the water of the Augustan Dragon, $\frac{3}{4}$ ii. of Arsemart $\frac{3}{4}$ iii.
mixe these, and make a potion.

C

Against

Against shortnesse of breath. Asthma.

R Ecip. Of our Mysterium gr. i. of prepared Sulphur gr. x. of the roote of Elecampane \mathfrak{z} β . a sufficient quantitie of Honey: make it into an electuarie, let the partie take that whole quantitie.

Against the oppression of the Chest or Breast.

R Ecip. Of the decoction of the Herbe of Cyclamen or Saw bread in Wine, with the Myristick Nut \mathfrak{z} iii. Make a Potion for the streightnesse of the Breast, to be taken fasting.

Against Pleurisie.

R Ecip. The juice of Tormentilla $\mathfrak{t}\mathfrak{b}$ β . of Cardus water \mathfrak{z} iii. of wild sage \mathfrak{z} ii. of flowers of the Lilies of the Valley of Englosse, of Violets, of Borage quart. i. of Cinamom \mathfrak{z} iii. of the brain of a Kite qu i. These being mingled, are to be steeped for eight dayes, and distilled in a Balmy.

R. Of this distill'd liquor \mathfrak{z} i. of our Mysterium gr. i β . make a potion.

R. O

Rx. Of the Herb of Baulm, of cole Mi. of Mint M β . of Wormewood P i. Steep these in distill'd Wine, for twelve houres at a gentle heat.

Rx. Of this liquor \mathfrak{z} β . of oyle of Juniper Berries, gr. v of Malmſie \mathfrak{z} i β . of Camphore gr. i β . of our Myſterium gr. i. Mingle these and make a diaphoretick Potion, which the partie is to take mornings and evenings : Outwardly to the affected place use this Unguent.

Rx. of the distill'd and expreſs'd oyle of sweet Almonds, ana \mathfrak{z} iii. oyle of tiles \mathfrak{z} i. Mixe these, make a soft Unguent according to art, with a quantity of wax.

Or ; Rx. Of Sallet oyle quart. i. of the juice of Tormentilla \mathfrak{z} β . of the braine of a Kite \mathfrak{z} i. Wax a lineament ; forget not to Phlebotomize the partie.

*To cure the crudities of the Stomack,
and its digestion.*

BEfore dinner and supper, let the partie take this Bole.

Rx. Of the oyle of Juniper Berries gut. v. of conserve of Rosemary flowers \mathfrak{z} i β of our Myſterium gr. i. Make a bole of it.

After dinner and supper let him use this powder.

R_x. Of pulverised water mint ʒ β. of the dry twigs of a hasel-mistle ʒ β. of Oak leaves ʒ i of Galanga ʒ ii. of Sagat a sufficient quantity : make a powder of it

Against the Spleen.

R_{Ecip}. Of Mans Urine ʒ i β. of the water of Tamarisk ʒ v. of the calcined Lazul-stone ʒ β. of our Mysterium gr. i. make a Potion of it.

R_x. Of Opopanax, of Galbanum, of Ammoniacum, ana ʒ ii. of the rectified blessed oyle ʒ i β. Make a plaister according to art which must lie on the scirrous Spleen, for six or eight weeks.

Against the Dropsie.

I^N the first place, the Dropicall partie being brought to an abstinence, there must be made a continuall Potion, in which are boyled the roots of Asclepias, or Vincetoxicum, according to our custome, in ʒ i of Malmesie, let it be strained and press'd out. In ʒ iii of this decoction, must be steeped

ped over night, of our Myſterium gr. i ſ. upon hot embers, adde unto it of Rhubarbe rectified by ſpirit of Tartar ℥ i. of the oyle of Juniper Berries gut. v. of the water of Speedwell ℥ ii. make a Potion, to be taken daily three or foure times, and muſt be followed till the cauſe of the diſeaſe is taken off.

For the diſperſing of the humour, outwardly muſt be applied to the decoction of Oedipus.

Rx. Of Swallow-wort ℥ ii. of the herb of Dwarf Elder M i. of Mugwort M ii. of the leſſer Water Crefſes M iß. of Moſſe grown on ſtones M i. of flowers of Nenuphar, of Verbaſcum, of Hypericon, ana P i. of Elders M i. of Chamomil P i. of ſeeds of radish ℥ ß. of Carrowie ℥ iiij. of meal of Beanes ℥ i. of dried Pigeons dung lb ß. of Goats dung quart. i. of Hens dung ℥ i ſ.

Let all theſe be boyled in red Wine, and Roſe water, ſtraine and preſſe it out; dip a linnen cloth into this hot liquor, and apply it to the Tumour, continue it till the humour be gone, and no remainder of it be left. The Patient under the cure may uſe the Electuarie of Diacubebs, prepared thus.

R. Of Crocus Martis reverberated very subtilly ʒ i s. of Spodium ʒ v s. of all sorts of Sandals, ana ʒ i s. of the foure cold great seeds, ana ʒ v. of the seeds of Endive, of Purslane, of Lettice, ana ʒ ij. of Sugar dissolved in the juice of Pomgranats: make this mixture into an Electuarie.

The cure of the yellow Iannadies.

R Ecip. Of our Mysterium gr. i. of Earth-wormes, of dry Saws, ana num. v. of orientall Saffron gr. iiij. of distill'd Wine, in which is steeped Celandine and Centory the lesser ʒ i s. of Malmsey ʒ iiij. makes a diaphoretick drink of it.

The cure of Soda (a heat of the Stomachs Orifice.)

R Ecip. Of our Mysterium gr. of wash'd Aloes ʒ s. of Marin Chalk ʒ s. of seeds of Poppie ʒ l. of the oyle of Myristick Nutt gr. v. Make Pils of them with the juice of Mint, or of Cyclamen, num. ix. three at a time to be taken.

To cure Vomiting.

R Ecip. Of Ferment (leven) quart i. of the juice of Mint, exprest with Vinegar, as much as is sufficient.

Boile these to the forme of a plaister, which must be applyed hot to the Stomack, being cold, renew it hot; and as often the Patient hath eaten or drunk, let that plaister lie on the Stomack for one or two houres.

To cure the paine of the Stone Cholick.

R Ecip. Of the extract of the root of Chamelcon \mathfrak{z} l. of distill'd Sallet oyle, of oyle of Juniper Berries, ana gut. v. of Aniseeds-oyle gut. viij. of the water of Arsemart \mathfrak{z} iii. of our Mysterium gr. i. make a Potion.

Rx. Of true Zibeth gr. x. of oyle of Mace gr. vi. Mix these and anoint the Navill, laying upon it the shell of a Walnut for an hour or two. This is an approved remedy also against the rising of the mother.

*Against the Stone of the Entrails col-
led constipation*

R Ecip. Of our Mysterium gr. v. of Ma-stix, of Mummy, ana ʒi. of Aniseeds ʒi.
of Diacidonium, of despumed Hony, or of juice of Lemmons or Quinces, a sufficient quantity: mix these into an Electuarie: the dose of it is ʒi.

To cure a Lask or Loosenesse.

R Ecip. Of Plantaine water, or of the decoction of Fern-root, or of the Au-gustan Dragon ʒi. of Camphorated liquor ʒi. of mans Urine ʒi. of the oyle of red Corals ʒi. of Crocus Martis ʒi. of our Mysterium gr. i. Make of it a Potion.

Against Wormes.

R Ecip. Of our Mysterium gr. i. of oyle
of Turpentine gut. v. of the water of Arsemart ʒiij. of Wormewood ʒi. Make a Potion.

To the Fundament, apply this Uguent.

Rx. the green Herbe of Hypericon, of
the

the lesser Centorie, ana M i. of washed Aloes
a sufficient quantity.

Make an Unguent according to art.

Against the Piles, Emroids about the Womb or Fundament; The chops in the palms of the hands, and soles of the feet,

CHiefly must be taken the Palestin Potion, next that, that fomentation must be used four or five times against the Chops.

Rx. Of the root of the lesser Nettle \mathfrak{z} vi.
of Raponticum, of the regall Camfry, of Eupatorium, of Pyrola or Wintergreen, of the lesser Centorie, of Prunell, ana M i. of Barly meal, of Wheat meal, ana \mathfrak{z} i. of pure water a sufficient quantitie, for a de-coction.

Or in lieu of it, let the Chops be anointed mornings and evenings with the following unguent.

Rx. Of the grease of a wild Cat, of a Hart, of a Badger, of Petroleum, ana \mathfrak{z} β . dissolve
or melt these in a gentle heat, adde there-unto of the oyle of Juniper Berries \mathfrak{z} vi. of tile oyle \mathfrak{z} iij. of oyle of Spike \mathfrak{z} i. mixe these.

Against

Against Womens Satyrials (or itching) unto Copulation.

Recip. Of roots of Radish, of oyle of bitter Almonds, of oyle of Apricocks kernels, ana ʒi . Make a Pessarie, leave it over night in the neck of the Womb.

Against the exulceration in the Kidneys and Bladder.

Recip. Seaven Winter Cherries, steep them in the best Wine, or in newly boyled Wine of ʒij . for twelve houres, presse it out very hard, and adde to this expression, of mans Urine ʒi . of oyle of Turpentine, gut. v. of white Frankincense $\text{ʒ}\beta$. of our Mysterium, gr. i. Mixe these and make a Potion of it.

The cure of the Stone.

Recipe. Of the root of Acorus (Calamus Aromaticus) or of Gariophyllida Liliorum Crdeorum, of the Herbes of Aquilegia, of Carduus, ana M. i. of Maiden-haire M. ii. of white Ginger $\text{ʒi}\beta$. Let these
be

be boiled according to our manner, in Alsatian Wine, straine and expresse them, in that expression steep for twelve houres, of our Mysterium gr. ii. adde unto it of the oyl of Juniper Berries, gr. v. of orientall Saffron, gr. ii. Make a Potion of it, to be used three or four times in the Bath. The Bath is this.

R. Of roots and Herbes of white Turneps, of Parsenips, ana lb i. of Aquilina lb s. of Anonis, of the Herbes of Gramen, of Speedwell, of Fragaria, of Buphtalmus, of Maiden-haire, of Mugwort, of Verbascum, of Chamomil, of Arispaltea, ana M. i. of Betonie of purple and white flowers, ana M. ii. of Prunella, of Carduus Benedictus, ana M. i. of seeds of Mug-wort, of Radish, of Nettles, ana $\frac{3}{4}$ v. of Winter-Cherries, quart i. of Snow-water, or Rain-water, or May dew, a sufficient quantity, which serveth instead of the Baths in Helvetia, the Alpes and Bohemia, and must be continued for ten or fourteen days.

Against

Against the Carcinoma or Canker of the Wombe.

Recip. Of the root of the regall Cam-fry, lb ℥. of Aristolochia rotunda ℥ vi. of the Herbe of Agrimonie, of Sanicle, of the Lyons foot. of Winter green, of both Per-winckles, ana M. i. of the Augustan Dragon, M. vii. of Parsenips, of Turneps, ana M. i. of new red wine two quarts: Let these boyle together, and take of this liquor ℥ iij. of the liquor of Microcolme ℥ i.
of our Mysterium gr. i. Make a Potion of
it.

Rx. Of Turpentine wash'd in Rose water
℥ vi. of Aloes Succotrine ℥ i. of the juice
of the great Camfry-root, of Aristolochia rotunda, of the Herbes of Agrimonie, of Winter green, of Plantaine, of the Augustan Dragon, of Arsemart, of the flowers
of Verbascum, of Hypericon, of Prunella,
of Centorie the lesser, of Betonie, ana ℥ iij.
of the oyle of Dill, of Frogs, of Earth-wormes, ana lb i. Make a Pessarie, to be put up into the Neck of the Wombe for foure or five houres every day. This may be applyed to the scissures or chops of the Privities

Privities and the fundament, and to the open Piles.

Rx. Of Harts suet lb s. of the oyle of Mercurie, of Dill, of yolkes of Eggs, ana ʒ vi. of wax a sufficient quantity. Make an Unguent for the Hack: these three, viz. a Potion, Clyster and Unguent, must be used daily.

To expell a Mola (a lump of flesh

Recip. Of Baulme-water, of Speedwell-water, of oyle of Juniper Berries gut. v. oyle of Amber gut. iii. of our Mysterium gr. i. of orientall Saffron gr. iii. of Mosch gr. i. make a Potion.

Rx. Of Scammonie ʒ iii. of Lapis Lazuli ʒ s. of Amber ʒ vi. of artificiall Chrysocolle ʒ ii. of Austrian Saffron ʒ ii. of Opopanax, a sufficient quantitie. Let there be made a Pessarie for the Matrix, which must be ministred at the first opportunity for the drawing forth of the Mola, else comming to a perfect bigness it may be the death of the Child-bearing Woman.

To cure the two sorts of Ruptures.

R Ecip. Of the extract of the root of the great Comfrey $\frac{3}{4}$ l. of white Sanicle $\frac{3}{4}$ i. of the Salt of Arsemart $\frac{3}{4}$ l. of the water of Swallow-wort $\frac{3}{4}$ iii. of the oyle of Juniper Berries gut. v. of our Mysterium gr. i. Make a Potion of it, which is good against all sorts of Ruptures: Such Patients must avoid contentions.

Against the rising of the Mother.

R Ecip. Of the liquor of Camphorated Treacle $\frac{3}{4}$ i. of the extract of the root of Chameleon $\frac{3}{4}$ l. of the oyle of white Frankincense $\frac{3}{4}$ i. of the oyle of Cinamon or of Cloves gut. iii. of the Uterine Elixir gut. v. of the water of Elder flowers $\frac{3}{4}$ iii. of Chamomil $\frac{3}{4}$ i l. of Arsemart. of the Tinctus of the Balsam g. v. of Salt of Insiper $\frac{3}{4}$ l. Make a Potion of it.

*Of Hysterical passions, of the obstrution of the Meneths, or their immoderate purgation,
and of the Whites.*

R Ecip. Of the water of Baulm, of Speed-
well, of Pulegium, \mathfrak{z} s. of Mugwort,
of the flowers of white Lillies, of Sanicle, ana \mathfrak{z} vi. of the oyle of Savin-Berries, of Bayes, of Citrin Amber, ana gut. v. of the Uterin Elixir gut. v. of salt of Wine \mathfrak{D} i.
of our Mysterium gr. i. of Saffron gr. ii.
Make a Potion, let the party drink of it mornings and evenings.

The Uterine Elixir is made thus.

R Ecip. Of the yellow flowers of Leu-coum, of Rosemary, of Lavender, ana \mathfrak{z} v. of the Herbe of Ocymus, of Caryophil-lata, of sweet Marjoram, of Sage, ana \mathfrak{z} s.
of the root of Carnabodium or Deronicum Alex: \mathfrak{z} i s. of Mace, of Nutmegs, of the best Cinamon, ana \mathfrak{z} ii. of Cloves, of Cabebs, of Mastix, of Frankincense, of Myrrhe, ana \mathfrak{z} s.

Put so much of essence of wine to it, that is it stand a hand breadth above it : being shaken and well mix'd, distill it seven times in a Balmy, then temper this distill'd liquor with the powder of the leaves of Opirizum, num. xx. Of Pearles, of red Corals, ana $\frac{3}{4}$ i. of garnats, Rubies and Sardies, ana $\frac{3}{4}$ f. Digest these in a Balmy for a moneth, and afterwards seporate the oyle from the phlegme, Against Barrennesse.

Recip. Of the extract of the root of Satoryon Erythronicum $\frac{3}{4}$ f. of the salt of balm $\frac{3}{4}$ i. of the oyle of the seeds of the lesser Nettle, gut. iii. of the liquor of Cinnamon drawn with distill'd Wine $\frac{3}{4}$ i f. of the Uterine Elixer gut. v. of our Mysterium gr. i. Make a small Potion, which must be taken morning and evening.

The cure of the Venereall disease.

Let the Patient containe himselfe in a warm room for two or three daies, and let him use this medicament.

Rx. Of our Mysterium gr. i. of Treacle $\frac{3}{4}$ f. of the Electuarie of the juice of Roses of Mel \mathfrak{z} i. of Tramin-Wine \mathfrak{z} i s. Make a Potion of it, which must be used severall

 times; or, take of the Treacle water \mathfrak{z} i.
 of the salt of Arsemart \mathfrak{z} s. of our Mysterium, gr. i. Mix these: the Patient having taken this, let him into a tub of hot water,
 in which is put, of Alome lb v. of Salt lb x.
 Let these be mixed, put to it a Cetum Scyl-linum, and having stood in the aire for three dayes, evaporate it to a drynesse, then boyl
 that in raine water, to the thicknesse of an oyle, this we call artificiall Therma or Baths: Adde unto it of the roots of Swallow-wort \mathfrak{z} x. of the great Comfry, of Aristolochia rotunda, ana quart i. of white Sanicle, or in the lieu of it, Cyclamen (Sow-bread) \mathfrak{z} ii s. of the Herbe of Centorie the lesser, of the wild Winter green, ana M ii.
 of Celandine M i s. of the Yellow Comfry,
 of Arsemart, ana M iij. of Oak leaves M ii.
 of tops of Juniper M ii s. Make a Bath,
 which the Patient must make use of as long,
 till all the Pockie sores are gone, and the malignant Ulcers thereof. The Wharts, Boyles, and bones quite rotten, and other stubborn sympmtomes, must besides the ordinary way of curing of Ulcers, have a Bath
 made, which is more styfifying.

Rx. Of oyle of Vitrioll $\frac{3}{4}$ l. of water of mans Blood, of Arselmart, ana $\frac{3}{4}$ l. Or Rx. Of oyle of Cloves, of Camphore, made by the white of an eg $\frac{3}{4}$ i. Mix it, and with this unguent or liquor anoint the places affected, and apply upon them a stiptick plaister.

Against the falling off of the haire.

REcip. Of leaves of Wormewood, of Rosemary, of Betonic, of water Mint, of Pulogium, of Abrotanum, ana M i. of Roses M i. of the root of Asarabacca $\frac{3}{4}$ iii. of the orientall Turbith $\frac{3}{4}$ l. of Cyprus Nutrunum. 4. Let these be boiled in lees, and strain it, let the parties head be washt with it, adding Venice soap, and drying the head with warm clothes, then anoint the head thus.

Rx. Of distill'd water of Honey, of urine, ana lb s. oyle of Serpents quart i. of Cloves $\frac{3}{4}$ ii. Mix these.

For the exulceration of the throat.

R Ecip. Of the greater Comfry ʒ ii s. of of Aristolochia rotunda ʒ vi. of Winter-green M. i. of St Johns Wort M. i. of Prunella M i s. of Barly P. i. of white Vitriol
 ʒ s. of Sal gemmæ ʒ i s. of the male Frankincense, of the best Myrrhe, ana ʒ s. Boyle these in Raine-water to lb i s. straine it, and dissolve in this strained liquor Oxymel Scyl-liticum ʒ ix. and make a gargarisme.

For loose Teeth.

A Noint them with the oyle of Crocus Martis, or, R. of the oyle of Vitriol,
 gut. v. of the decoction of Plantain, made of red wine, ʒ i s. Mix these: But those Teeth that are ready to fall out, let them
 be anointed with the oyle of Myristick Nuts.

For the Virulent Gonorrhœa.

R Ecip. of the seeds of Parslane, of Plantain, of Lettice, of Nightshade, ana ʒ ii.
 of the four hot seeds, ana ʒ s. of Crocus

Martis very subtilly reverberated. of bole Armenic very well calced, ana ℥ ii. of the best Sarda ℥ ii l. of Spodium ℥ ii l. Pulverise that which is to be pulverised, add to it the Electuarie of Gemms, a sufficient quantitie : make a mixture in Ferme of a tincture, or broth, let the partie tak ʒ i. of it in the morning, at three of the clock, and at evening, at nine of the clock.

Of botches, of or about the Privities.

Recip. Of diachilon magnum ʒ i. of Tile-oyle ʒ l. or of the oyle of Galbanum, or of the oile of Ammoniacum. Mixe these and make a maturative unguent for the venericall Botch; which being opened, heale it with a stiprick Plaister. The dyet whereby bits are set down for the Palat, ought not so precisely to be prescribed, as Nosewise Doctors have cunningly invented lawes for women that lie in: They may eat reasonably, and drink a draught of wine sometimes, and their meats may pretty well be seasoned with salt, according as the condition of the disease is.

The cure of Leprosie, and of Tinea.

R Ecip. Of the water of Baulme, of Speedwell, of Betonie, of Mugwort, of Fumitorie, of Succorie, ana $\frac{3}{4}$ lb. of the liquor of Microcosme, of Camphorated Treacle, ana $\frac{3}{4}$ lb. of the oyle of Juniper Berries, of Bayes, ana gut. v. in which you are to dissolve, of the flowers of Cassia newly drawn $\frac{3}{4}$ iij. of Calabrian Manna $\frac{3}{4}$ lb. and adde thereto the Syrup of Stæchas $\frac{3}{4}$ vi. of our Mysterium gr. i. Mingle these, and make a Palestine Potion, which must be taken by the Patient, fasting daily in the Bath, and this alone is sufficient to cure a Lentigo.

The Bath is made thus,

R Ecip. Of the roots and green Herbes of Balatrachium, of Flammula (Flavel) M. x. of Colts-foot M. v. of artificiall hot-Bath. as much as is enough. Make a Bath, let the Leper make use of it as long, till all the impure excrementitious scurfs are gone from the body. He may be dipped afterward in the tub (chaire) of the heavenly water, or the Indian Bath.

*The cure of a deform'd skin, running over the face with a strange colour: for all manner of ill effects of hairs,
and how they are to be mended.*

R Ecip. Of distill'd Wine lb i ss. of the white of boyled Eggs num. x or xii. of the calx of Eg shells ʒ vi. of burnt Tartar, of alu-men plumosum vel scissum, of Sal gemmae, ana quart i. Distill these into a water, adde thereunto of the roots Polygonum ʒ ii. of Asphodel, of Brionie, of white Lillies, ana ʒ i. of Aaron ʒ i ss. of the greater Comfrey
quart i. of the Herbe of Flammula M. iiii.
of Levisticum M. i. of flowers of Beanes,
of Lilium convallium, ana M. ii. Distill these again, and adde thereunto of the water of young cut veines that are cut lb ss.
of Honey quart i. of Camphore ʒ ss. of leaves of Gold ʒ ii. of the filings of Pewter, of Lead, of Copper, ana ʒ i. of the Solar and Lunar Markasite, of Chimo-lea, ana ʒ ii. Let these be macerated for a moneth in Horse-dung, straine and distill it,
then make a Bath of the tincture, to be used outwardly, or let the haire be wash'd
with

with it for a fortnight, put of Camphore to it ʒi . and the party may use the Palestine Potion.

To cure the scabs.

AT the first entring into the Bath, and at the coming out of it, let the partie drink a diaphoretick potion, and so let him use the Indian Bath for a sennight. Then let him take off the Indian Bath, lb i. of Petroleum ʒ iii. of the Philosophick oyle ʒi . Let these be boiled, well luted, the liquor being cooled, soak sponges in it, and so take it out, and afterward put it into the Indian Bath; and that also must be continued for eight dayes.

Against burnings and parts kill'd by frost.

REcip. Of costed oyle of Nuts $\text{lb } \beta$. of Harts Suet, of Goats Suet, of oyle of yolkes of Eggs, of Wax, ana quart i . Make an unguent, still moisten the sore with it.

Against Varices, when the Arteries on Muscles are swell'd and look black.

Phlebotomie must be used, after that the places affected must be anointed with mans greale distill'd for severall weeks.

To cure venemous contagious diseases.

Recip. Of Sydericum decocted in old Alsatian Wine \mathfrak{z} v. of syrup of Lemons or Orenge \mathfrak{z} i. of the liquor of camphorated Treacle \mathfrak{z} β of the liquor of Microcosme, of the oyle of Turpentine, of Juniper Berries, ana gut. v. of red Corals \mathfrak{z} β . of the species of Gemms \mathfrak{z} i. of the Lemnian earth, gr. v. of the best Unicorne, gr. iii. of the best Mosch, gr. i. of orientall Saffron, gr. iii. of our Mysterium gr. i l. Mix these and make a diaphoretick potion.

The cure of St Antonies fire.

EVery yeare, the Sinews, Muscles, Arteries on the legs and feet must be beaten, then this following Medicament must be ministred.

Rx. Of

Rx. Of the juice of Tartar gut. x. of the water of Arsemart z iii. of our Mysterium gr. i. Make a potion of it : at last dip a linnen cloth into the hot liquor, apply it frequently to Antonies fire ; which is : •

Rx. Of the poudre of red Myrrhe, of white Frankincense tyed in a bag, ana z β . of very sharp Vinegar lb i. of Tart, or Aromatick wine lb ii. Let these be boiled.

The cure of Imposthumes.

SOME Imposthumes are simple and mild, Others are malignant. For the malignant Imposthume, beside the use of Chirurgicall meanes, this following potion may be ministred.

Rx. Of our Mysterium gr. i. of the juice of Tartar gut. x. of oyle of Turpentine z β . of Juniper oyle, gut. v. of the liquor of Camphorated Treacle z β . of water of Valeriana, of Fumitorie, of Veronica, ana z β . Mingle these and make a potion ; inwardly must be used a Medicament, which openeth the exulceration, especially of the Carbuncle or Anthrax, or the pestilentiall boyle.

Rx. Of the CrySTALLIN Realgar z i. of Calx vive z i. of Oak misleto, a sufficient quantity quantitie. Make an aperitive unguent of it. Afterward in the very same manner, as usually is proceeded with a simple Imposthume, let there be applyed a concocting

and attractive medicament, vulgarly a Maturative joyned with an attractive.

Rx. Of the juice of the herb of March-mallows, of Dwarf Elder, of Coleworts, of Rue, of Oxylapathum, of Arselmart, ana ℥ i. of Muscilages, of Linseed, of Fenugreek, of Psyllium, of Quinces, of Colophone, of the Milleto of the fir or pine tree, of Turpentine, of the tops of the Larix (the lark tree,) of Juniper, of the root of the great Cumfry, ana ℥ i. of Bdelium ℥ vi. of Figs, of Raisins boyled, ana ℥ i. of Beanes, ana ℥ i. of the powder of Rhubarbe ℥ ii. of the root of Hermodactyls ℥ i. of Citrin Amber ℥ i. of Foxes and Cats grease, ana ℥ i. f.
of womans milk ℥ iii. of Tyle oyle ℥ iii.
of Juniper oyle, of Dill oyle, of chamomill
oyle, of sweet Almond-oyle. of the oyle of the yolks of Eggs, ana ℥ i. f. Make a suppurating Plaister according to Art, then with a strippeck plaister, cicatrice it: Phlebotomie
may be used also in this case.

The cure of Ulcers.

IN the first place, to assuage the grievous paine of Ulcers, as of Gangreen, Cancer, and the running Phagedena, and the like, with a Balsame or a nedyne Unguent, this following Chironick potion is to be given thrice in a day.

Rx. Of Swallow-wort, of the herbes of Wintergreen, of the lesser Centorie, ana M. i. of the Augustan Dragon, of the midler Cunntry, of Arselmart, ana M. ii. of Celandine M. i. Boyle these in a Kettle for an houre and a halfe, luting the junctures very well, straine it with Beer, new Wine or new Meale, and presse it out.

Rx. Of this expression $\text{℥} \text{iii.}$ of the water of the Cervin germination $\text{℥} \text{ii.}$ and dissolve therein of granated Manna $\text{℥} \text{i.}$ Then adde of Rubarbe extracted with spirit of Tartar $\text{℥} \text{i.}$ Mix these and make a potion.

Rx. Of this expression $\text{℥} \text{iii.}$ of Nater of Palma Christi buds $\text{℥} \text{ii.}$ of the oyle of Juniper Berries, gut. v. of our Mysterium gr. i. Mix these and make a potion; if there be any necessity, that there must be applyed a caustick Medicament to the hard and callous mouthes monthes of Herpes, astiomenum, the wolf (as triviall Doctors would have it) then once or twice there must be used that following one.

Rx. Of the oyle of fix'd Arsenick, of burnt Allom quencht in Vinegar, in lieu of this prepared Chalcantum (vitriol) ana $\text{ʒ} \text{ss}$. Mixe these and make an unguent; Or,

Rx. Of the Oile of fixed Arsenick, of the juyce of Celandine, ana $\text{ʒ} \text{ii}$. β . Boile away the juyce, and adde of the Oyle of Cloves, $\text{ʒ} \text{ii}$. of the Cristallin Realgar, $\text{ʒ} \beta$. Mixe these, dip a linnen cloth into it and apply it, and guard the affected place about with a repelling Medicament, (vulgarly called a Repercussive and Defensive Medicament) namely, with a warme Decodion of Oelipus or lana Succida, (the sett of unwashed wooll) which is a defence and protection against increasing symptoms: For the ripening of the scurvie, and for the taking out the foundation of corrupt flesh, apply this following.

Rx. Of the unguent of Cernse, $\text{ʒ} \beta$. Of Tile-oile, $\text{ʒ} \text{i}$. of Harts suet, of Crude Butter, ana $\text{ʒ} \text{i} \beta$. Mix these, then apply a purging Unguent (called Mundificative) to the Ulcer, which is made thus

Rx. Of

Rx. Of Turpentine boiled in the strongest red Wine, and boiled away, and in water of Arselmart, or Celandine washed nine times, or in Mistletoe of the Pine-tree \mathfrak{z} iiii. of yolks of eggs, num. x. of crude honey, \mathfrak{lb} β . of Aloes wash'd in water, of Cyclamen, or Plantaine \mathfrak{z} i. of Calcined Alome, often quenched in Vinegar \mathfrak{z} i. β . of as viride, \mathfrak{z} β . of Vitriol Chalcantb, \mathfrak{z} vi. Boile these into a browne Unguent.

Rx. Of this Unguent, quart i. of oyle of Mercurie \mathfrak{z} i. Mix these and use it: but if the bones be eaten by rottenesse, if the flesh be black and dead, or if any part or member be quite and absolute dead, then let it be taken off by one instrument or other, and the next place to it bee guarded thus:

Rx. Of Oyle of Cloves, made of Camphore by the white of Eggs, ana \mathfrak{z} β . Mix these, and binde a Stiptick Plaster to the place affected, which must be continued so long till all be covered with flesh: at last the Ulcer is to be healed with the following Stiptick plaster.

Rx. Of Virgin wax, of gold Lethargyr, ana \mathfrak{lb} i. of Colophonium, of Calamy, ana \mathfrak{z} ii s. of Sallet-oile, \mathfrak{lb} i. l. of Opopanax, of Sagapenum, of Bdellium, of Ammoniacum, of Galbanum dissolved in Vinegar, ana ℥ i. f. of the true blond-stone, of red Corals, of Sarda, ana ℥ v. i. of Mum, of Mastix, of Myrrhe, of Frankincense, any ℥ i. of prepared Antimonic, ℥ f. of Crocus Martis ℥ ii. of the Refine of the Lark-tree, ℥ ii. f. Let these be boiled according to Art into a plaster, and softened with the oile of Hypericon, or earth-worms.
of

Against Stabborne Ulcers, which will not easily close, by reason of rotten flesh, and other defects.

Recip. Of calcined Sal armoniac and Tartar, as much as you please, sublimate it; take out this sublimate, and cleanse it, and sublime it againe together with the feces. Being sublimed and purified, set it in a glass in a Cellar, let it dissolve; annoint these Ulcers with a Feather dipped into the Liquor, and lay on them a Stiptick Plaster.

To heale a wound.

IT is found by experience, that care must be had, that the lips of a wound must be wiped, and well annointed, bones broken
 well set, or being out of joynt, be put in their right places, and the wound also be filled with warme Unguent; if the wound be on the head, the Medicament must be laid on silke, because of the tenderesse, (noblesnesse of the skin of the Brain, or Pia mater)
 and our warme Oile, or the oile of Juniper Berries) be syringed into every corner, and the Fractures or Luxations thereof be an-nointed with it, round about the wound
 where the Medicament of the place affected are, must be made wet with the warme
 decoction of the greasie wool, to keep off
 any other symptomes or defluxion falling that way; and that must be done twice a day for eight dayes together, or nine, that it be firme enough, provided that alwayes
 the wound be washed at the first dayes with a Cerotick Laver.

A Vulnerarie Unguent.

REcip. Of the green Herbs of Perwinckle, of Arselmart, of the yellow Comfrie, of Ophioglosson, (Lingua Serpentaria,) of Plantaine, ana m. i. of the roots of the great Comfrey, \mathfrak{z} vi. of Aristolochia rotunda \mathfrak{z} iii. Let these be beaten to a Pap, putting a little quantitie of wine to it, boile it for ten houres, like a Chironick Potion, being sufficiently boiled, then beat it very well, straine it through a cloth, to that strained liquor put of crude honey, or in lieu of it of May butter, Crude \mathfrak{lb} i. of the slime of Earth-worms \mathfrak{z} v. of Harts marrow \mathfrak{z} iii. of our Mummy quart i. of Fuled salt, of Crocus Martis, of the flowers of αs viride, ana \mathfrak{z} l. of Citrin Amber \mathfrak{z} i. Let these be boyled also, and be strained through a cloth presse it, then set it in the sun or Horse-dung to digest it.

Our vulnerarie is made thus.

REcip. Of the oyle prest from seeds of Hypericon, of our Turpentine, or Resine, of the larix (larke tree) ana \mathfrak{lb} i. of the best.

best red wine lb i. Let these be boyled for an houre, then add to it of fresh sallet oyle quart i. of the best red wine lb i. Let these boyle again for an houre, then add to it of the flowers of Hypericon, of Prunella, of the lesser Centorie, of the best red wine a sufficient quantity. Let it be boyled againe
for six houres, that the wine be boyled
away, at last put to it of Mastix, of Myrrhe,
of Frankincense, ana 3 i. of Mumie 3 iii.
Let these be digested for a moneth at the Sun, or longer; then take a feather, dip it into the Balsame, and anoint the wound
with it, and apply a stiptick plaister, that no veines, arteries, nerves, or other ligaments may appeare.

Our vulnerarie Balsame is this.

REcip. Of Turpentine oyle lb. 3. of Tile-oyle quart i. of flowers of Hyper-icon, of the lesser Centorie, of the yellow Comfrey, ana a sufficient quantitie for to fill it up. Let these be digested at the Sun for six dayes, and presse it, after ward put other flowers to it, for to digest them, and that must be iterated seven times. Then adde thereunto of washt Turpentine 3. vi. Digest

E

ic

imagine. If any thing of the blow remaine
in the wounded part, which the Medicine
could not get out or heale, as of the weapon, be it of an Arrow, or a Ballet, gotten into the closures, or hollownes of the bones, under the skull, or the concavities
of the eyes, the same must be gotten out by a spell. If any bones be loose, or splinters, or the like of the weapon be left in desperate wounds, then apply the following plaster in lieu of a common stiptick plaister.
℞. Of wax lb i. of the juice of the Au-gustan Dragon lb s. of Colophonie, of Shoo-makers wax or Ratom quarr i. of gumme
Ammoniac ʒ ii. of yellow Amber ʒ iii.
Make a plaister according to art, which must be tempered with the oyle of yolks of eggs, then let the wound be bound or dressed onely, with an ordinarie stiptick plaister, and so cicatrize it. Provided that by all means the chyronicall potion be administred.

A Medico-chymicall curatation, of the falling sicknesse.

THE best antidote (preservative) is the most excent essence of mans blood, by whose meanes is procured, that the violent influence

influence of the Lunar course, shall never cause any Lunatick or falling sicknesse, nor prevaile with such a partie any more. This antidote is prepared in this manner.

Rx. Of Mans blood which is yet hot $\frac{3}{4}$ li of distill'd wine $\frac{3}{4}$ i. Digest these for forty dayes in a body, then distill it in a Balmy and separate by a speciall manuell the white liquor from the yellow. One scruple of this being given at the beginning of the New Moon, in the first fit, doth so operate,
that it allayeth the fervent fury of the falling sicknesse, and the partie will never be troubled with that Epilepticall concussions.
In like maner that glorious oyle of Cranium
humanum, taketh away wholly and radically the falling sicknesse, if but three graine
be taken of it, and the party will never be invaded with it, and that oyle is prepared in this manner.

Rx. A Mans skull, which never was interr'd, and be freed from all moisture (but mor.) beat it very small, force it strongly by a great fire, in a retort, drive all its moisture over into the Receiver, which liquor must be put againe on the feces, and be driven over againe; and being iterated a third time, then is this oyle of mans skull elixe-

rated or brought to a perfection, which must be kept safe in a glasse for use: it is a most precious treasure.

There are other mysteries hidden in other Animals, as in the Elk, Kite, Bees, which in the same manner cure for ever Epileptick convulsion: But I passe them by to avoid prolixity.

There is used also against the falling sickness, to the party are given nine graines of reverberated Antimonie, when the first Paroxisme is upon the patient: If the fit comes again, then must be conveyed into the party ten and eight graines, an houre after the fit is over, then nine graines againe, if another fit comes, after the third Paroxisme be over, the party will be troubled no more with it.

A third meanes is Linterium; to the party must be given an houre before the fit commeth one Scruple of the liquor of Ophirizum or gold, and three houres after the fit, take a scruple, and that must be used a sixth time, if the Epileptick fits continue afterwards the partie will be quite rid of it.

The last meanes is a most cleare tincture of red Corals, at the first fit must be given to the partie halfe a dram, and as often as the fit returneth, then this dose must be continued, and cureth this disease fully.

I passe by here by those most excellent secrets of Gemms, as of Smaragd, of Adamant, of Garnat, of Turquois, which being used, are of the same energie, and suffer no returnes of the falling sicknesse.

Hitherto have we handled of the faure Phylacteries, or Olympick mysteries. Now we will come to the Euporistick Medicaments, and will speak of an exact Method, being grounded upon a long experimentall knowledge. In the first place, to take away the causes of the falling sicknesse, and to keep off its returnes: The party is to be purged with three graines of black Smezwort, being taken either in small Metheglin, or in a decoction of Hypoglosson (tongwort,) being seasoned with spices. Its preparation is thus:

Rx. Of the root of black Hellebor, which beares purple flowers, being fresh and ponderous must be cut, sprinkle it or poure on it the æthereall essence of wine, distill it, the first must be gentle, then increase it by degrees, let all the liquor be drawn over; againe, separate the celestiall essence of wine by a gentle fire in a balmy, from the black liquor, in the liquor which remaineth in the bottome of body or glasse, must be dissolved Sugar Candy as much as is sufficient: Thus our Helleborine is prepared.

After the body is purged, there must be ministred the oyle of Vitriol, being reduced into a volatile essence, which fully cureth the Epileptick distention, and bringeth the body to the pristin goodnes: Which if it be not wanting, then make the olympick cnet thus:

Rx. Of Hungarie Vitriol lb xii. of Spodium Electum, of Camphore, ana $\frac{3}{4}$ v. pouce on these three the water of Paxonie seeds, gathered at the decrease of the Moon, and let these be driven by a Chymick descent, even unto red feces.

Rx. Of these red Feces lb i. of distill'd liquor lb ii. of essence of wine, of water of Celandine, Baulm, of Germander, of Valeriana, of Plantaine, ana $\frac{3}{4}$ i lb. Let these be distill'd with a strong fire in a glasse retort: then;

Rx. Of the red Feces lb ii. of distill'd liquor lb i. Let these first be steep'd, then distill it day and night, then commeth over together the phlegme, spirit and oyle, which are

are thus separated: The pblegme is separated in a Balmy, the Spirit by a Seraphicum, and the red oyle in an Athapor. Of the pblegme is given to yong people before the fit commeth, to Aged people is given of the Spirit one Scruple, to old people is given of the oyle gr. iii.

That is none of the meanest Antidotes against the falling sickness, which is taught in the Stechomantia, used by some of the Sabeans.

Rx. Of the waters of the root of Nightshade, of Winter-Cherries, of the seeds of Pxonie, gathered in the wane of the Moon, ana \mathfrak{z} ii l. of fresh Castoreum \mathfrak{z} i. of the species of Diamoschum dulce \mathfrak{z} i l. of Virgin Hony \mathfrak{z} ii. of Anacardin Honey \mathfrak{z} l. Let these be distill'd in a Balmy, to which must be added, of prepared Pearles \mathfrak{z} l. of the shavings of the Unicorn gr. iiii. of the simple oyle of Vitriol. gut. v. of Anis seed oyle gr. ix. Mixe these: administer \mathfrak{z} i of this liquor before the fit commeth, let it be iterated for nine daies together, then this horrible disease will be absolutely cured, though the party had been afflicted with it xx yeares.

More Antiodtes can be found out for the Epilepsie by him that knoweth (indeed Physicians that will be perfect, ought to know) the Astronomical Arts, among which is numbred the Magia Teurgica, Cabala Egyptiaca, Necromantica Orientalis, Cha-racteristicall impression or spels, the Cœlesti-all Sophia, and others, not convenient to be inserted here.

FINIS.

The Pyricall Art for Medicinall Salts prepared Chymically ;

By D. George Phadron, that Famous PHYSITIAN.

How the Plague, that Epidemicall Disease, is cured.

Hereas the causes and signs are conveyed into mens bodies, as it were with one fall, as daily experience sheweth, and is taught by, or in the Propyrick Art, so that by reason of your nimble and sodaine quantity of destroying can hardly be allayed, here in this place, besides the ordinary method observed in cures, care ought to be had, by wife

wise and diligent & industrious Physitians, that the coming and creeping poison be expell'd presently from the more principall members, by speciall and singular Antidotes, which are had against the horrible infection in the art call'd Orientall Charontick, Characteristick impression, the perfect medicine, the Coelestiall Sophie, and other Arts belonging to Mathematicks. And that I might not be contrarie in the cure of the Plague, which divine Science was imparted unto me, naturally being inclined, or by force of Nature in Astronomicall Arts, and will in few words set down, as much as time will permit, the severall cures of the said Arts, what their efficacy is against this disease. And in the first place the Orientall Charontica witnesseth to be known among the Tharsi, Alexandrini, and in our age, that the following purge, being taken at the beginning of the infection in case of necessity, never mis'd, so that for the present in this manner might be prepared in shops for a sovereign medicine.

℞. Of Euphorbium ℥i. of the best Myrre, Of the Masculine Frankincense ℥ii. of Tragacanth ℥℥. Inclose these in browne Crude bread, let it be cocted in the Oven, this bak ked

ked matter being cold, adde thereunto of red Corals, of Transparent Citrin Amber, ana ʒ β. of Unicorn horn gr i. of the Thebaic Opium ʒ β. of the best Molch gr. iii. of Orientall Saffron ʒ β. Make a masse of Pills in sublimed Wine, according unto Species of Diambra. If the partie be of twenty yeares of age, let him take of it ʒ i. or ʒ ii. if the partie be younger, then a lesse quantity will serve; and if the party be stricken in yeares, then a greater quantitie must be taken. The partie must fast for five houres after the taking, and the parties stomack being somewhat recovered, let him take the following potion.

Rx. Of Philonium Persicum, or of the best Treacle ʒ i. of the Spices of Gemms ʒ i. of red Corals ʒ i. of red wine, in which Crude steel is quenched ʒ ii. of the water of Prunella, of Baulm, ana ʒ i. Make a Potion; which expels the Plague, Plentisie, Flux, Inflammation of the throat, and other mortall diseases, curing them radically, not suffering them to returne, according to the antient experience of the orientall Charontick.

Secondly the Characteristicall impression, before other Medicaments propounds
this

this Electuarie, one dram being by the Patient taken several times, and well covered, expels that deadly poison wonderfully by sweat and Urine, if well prepared by a good Apothecarie, it will not faile in curing the pest.

Rx. Of Rhubarb ponticum, of Zedoaria, of Dictamn. Creticus, of Elicampane, of Angelica, of Cardopatia, of Magistrantia, of Valeriana, of Gentiana, of Morsus diaboli, of Tormentilla, of Pimpinella, of Bistorta, of Doronicus, of Aristolochia longa, of the herbe of Paris, of Swallow-wort, of the leaves of Scordium, of Carduus Benedictus, of Rue, of Sage, of Wormwood, of the herbe of Paris, of Cardiaca, of Hypoglossum, of Cordiall Flowers, of Rosemary flowers, ana ʒ i. of Bayberries, of the Herbe of Paris, ana ʒ f. of Juniper Berries ʒ iii. of the shavings of Nuces Vomica ʒ i. of Anise-seed, of Fennell seed, of prepared Coriander, of Ocimum, of Citrum, of Plantaine, of Sorrell, ana ʒ f. of Ants eggs, living under Pinetrees ʒ f. of shaven Liquorice, ʒ i f. of Lignum Aloes ʒ i f. of Opium Thebaicum ʒ ii. of Myrrhe, of Frankincense, of Mastix, ana ʒ iii. of Ginger, of Galanga, of Cinamom, of Mace, of Nutmeg, of Cloves, Cloves ana \mathfrak{z} ii. of Long Pepper, of a grain of Paradise, ana \mathfrak{z} iiii. of old red wine lb f. of scumm'd white honey lb ii f. of Rose Sugar lb i f. make an Electuarie.

Rx. Of this Electuarie, of syrup of Citrum, ana lb i. of Aquavita thrice distill'd lb v. Let these be infused and stand in horse dung for a moneth, then distill it gently in a Balm.

Rx. Of this liquor \mathfrak{z} i. of the syrup of Citrus \mathfrak{z} i. of Vinegar \mathfrak{z} i. of Rose water \mathfrak{z} i f. of Ants eggs which are under pine trees \mathfrak{z} f. of dry berries of the herbe of Paris num. iiii. of Cordiall species of Gemms \mathfrak{z} ii. of the horn of the Unicorn, or of harts horne, cast at the first breed gr. iiii. of gold leaves n. i. of Saffron gr. iiii. of Camphore gr. i. Mingle it for a potion.

The poison being expelled, let the parties linnen be either burnt or flung into the River with his urine. This purging Electuary being taken, let the contagion be what it will, the partie infected will finde ease and help; Phlebotomie is not to be used, being dangerous, and other waies made use of by Moderne Physitians.

Thirdly, the Perfecta Medicina for the expelling of the Plague, the following Balm same

same is much commended and of great efficacy, to be made by an expert Chymist.

R. Of yellow Sulphur $\frac{3}{4}$ x. of Myrrhe, of Frankincense, ana $\frac{3}{4}$ vi. of Aloes washed nine times in water, of Prunella $\frac{3}{4}$ i. of Roman Vitriol, of prepared Salt, ana $\frac{3}{4}$ iiii. Mix these well, sublime the Sulphur, and this sublimate must with fresh species mixed be sublimed again, which if iterated the third time, then you have an excellent Balsame.

R. Of this Balsame $\frac{3}{4}$ l. of Myrrhe, of Frankincense, of Austrian Safron gr. iiii. of the Syrup of Citrus $\frac{3}{4}$ i. of Baum water $\frac{3}{4}$ ii. Mixe it.

This potion being taken daily preserveth and cureth the Pest, without any other Medicament, cureth the desperate Pleurisie, all manner of Coughs and corruptions of Humane bodies, expelling them more then is credited. But if the heavenly soule and fiery vertue be drawn from this Balsame, it is of a most noble quality against outward and inward diseases, which is much to be esteemed by a Physitian. For this Mysterium is reduced into a more excellent Medicament, a mighty treasure for all manner of men (diseased) which I speake of now, in this envious, covetous, and proud Age. Lastly, the Coelestiall Sophie affords a vertuous heavenly Treacle, which expels any Venome from mansbody. Chymically it is prepared thus.

this

R. Of a part of mansbody, cut small, of old and pure Sallet oyle, ana ℥ i. ℥. Let it stand in putrefaction in hot horse dung for a Month, then distill it in a retort: After this distill'd liquor of ℥ i. addo of old Mithridate ℥ v. of Alexandrin Treacle ℥ iii. of the most fragrant Mosch ℥ l. of Ambergrease ℥ l. Mix these and let it stand in digestion for a month in hot horse dung, then distill it in a Balmy, then is your Coelestiall Treacle prepared.

R. Of the liquor of this Treacle ℥ i. of Sorell syrup simplex, of Lemon juice, ana ℥ i. ℥. mix these. This potion must be given three times to the partie, every fifth houre, if any boyle appeareth outwardly, bring it to maturity, and then open it; together with this potion and other Medicaments the olympick plaister, or our wonderfull stickicum.

R. Of the juice of the root of the herb of Paris, of Angelica, of Aristolochia rotunda, of Afarum, of the greater Comfrey, of Violaria laria, of the herbes of Betonie, of Prunella, of the lesser Centorie, of Persicaria, of Celandine, of Pyrola, of Agrimonie, of Plantaine, ana \mathfrak{z} i of Muscilage, of Linseed, of Fenugreek, of March-mallows, ana \mathfrak{z} i \mathfrak{ss} . of white wax \mathfrak{lb} \mathfrak{ss} . of Colophonie \mathfrak{z} ii \mathfrak{ss} . of Pitch, of Rasom, ana \mathfrak{z} iii. of Sallet oyle \mathfrak{lb} i \mathfrak{ss} . of Turpentine, washt nine times in water of Solatrum \mathfrak{z} iii. of Opopanax, of Serapinum, of Ammoniacum, of Galbanum dissolved in Rose-water, ana \mathfrak{z} i \mathfrak{ss} . of Citrin Amber, of Mastix, of Myrrhe, of Frankincense, of Aloes washt nine times in Rose-water, ana \mathfrak{z} i. of Syrax, of Sperma Ceti, of Terra Sigillata, ana \mathfrak{z} ii. of Rhubarb, of Rhaponticum, of Calamus Aromaticus, of Zinziber, of Acrons, ana \mathfrak{z} \mathfrak{ss} . of the shining Peacock feathers, of Snake skins, ana \mathfrak{z} ii. of Antimonie \mathfrak{z} \mathfrak{ss} . of red Corals, of white Corals, ana \mathfrak{z} i. of Lethargyre \mathfrak{lb} \mathfrak{ss} . of Lapis Calaminaris \mathfrak{z} ii \mathfrak{ss} . of Hamatites \mathfrak{z} \mathfrak{ss} . of Magnet \mathfrak{z} iii. of Camphor \mathfrak{z} i. of the oyle of Hypericon, of Chamomill, of Anethum, of Bayes, of Juniper Berries, of Eggs, of Earth worms, ana \mathfrak{z} i. of Spike \mathfrak{z} i. of Hartsmarrow, of Capons grease, of Tithymallus, of Mans, ana \mathfrak{z} i \mathfrak{ss} . Boyle these to a plaister according to Art.

Thus

Thus these four Mathematick Arts, teach us to cure Pestilentiall diseases, and the Astronomicall experience, affords no nobler thing among the simples, then the Magick Stone, or Philosophick; the soule of reverberated Antimonie, the diaphoretick liquor of Ophirizum, the oyle of Pearles, the tincture of Gemms; these alone are held the highest and onely Magnalia.

The lesser Surgerie of George Phadron that famous Physitian.

VVHereas in our age from the hands of Physitians, Surgery is faine upon Barbers and Barbers of no experience, the four principall parts of Physick, Philosophie, Chymistry, and Mathematick. The love unto my neighbour hath moved me, after a long experimentall knowledge, to shew an easier and safer way, very convenient and safe for all students in Surgerie, not checking my Conscience for the doing of it.

Therefore I will prescribe briefly and perspicuously the knowledge of all open sores and ulcers, how these methodically may be cured
F

cured physically and spiritually, which notable Symptome being discovered, which daily molesteth mankind, the good of the uniuersall Christendome, chiefly of the Illustrious principalitie of BAVARIA, be promoted, where when I was a student in Arts, and was a practitioner, I was courteously dealt withall, by all manner of persons.

There is proposed in our protopyrick Medicines, & in our daily practise, a threefold kind of open sores, w^{ht} a cure belonging therunto.

First that which is hot, red, and is found about the nervous parts and passages. And that is cured with the Vincetoxicum.

The other sort is burning, causing extreme paines, without any rednesse, or in parts full of nerves. And that is cured by Centaurium Minus.

The third and last, is accompanied with a perpetuall tumor and running, this we cure with Pyrola. Thus :

Rx. Of this herbe M. v. or of the root \mathfrak{z} iii. put in lb iii of cleare and old wine, or in pure fountaine water in a cleane pot, luting the junctures well, set it in boyling water, let it stay there for halfe or a whole houre, let one moitie be boyled away.

Rx. Of this water \mathfrak{z} iii. with an ounce

Rx.
of Minus,

of Canarie Sugar dissolved in Cinnamon water, to be given to the partie affected, according to the judging of the disease, being an ordinary custome among wounded men, in what part soever of the body the Symptome
 be, the cure must be begun from within,
 and the efficacy of the inwardly taken Medicine is felt; the wound must be wash'd
 with wine, in which is boyled the herb Pyrola, or the plaister of the powder of Pyrola must be applyed: The powder and Plaister may be omitted, that the wound may be cured with one onely thing.

But in the venereall disease, if application
 be made in the same way, among the herbes
 there is none more effectuell then is Hypoglossum, which prevaieth more, then may be done by anointing, fumigation, or washing meanes; and effecteth thus much,
 that none of the diseased curleth either Surgeon or Physitian.

And because these three kinds, by reason of mixed signes are hardly discern'd or distinguish'd; therefore we may safely take our course to the preparation of the first de-
 coction.

Rx. Of Vincetoxicum, of Centaurium,
 Minus, of Pyrola, of Hypoglossum, ana M ii.

F 2

boyle

boyle these after our way: The Surgeon will be eased of his daily labours, and will help the partie in a sodaine necessitie with the following wine.

Rx. Of Hypericon, of Veronica, of Plantago Utraque, of Betonie, of Eupatorium, of Prunella, of Vinca per Vinca, ana M i. of Pyrola Sylvatica, of the lesser Centorie, ana M xvi. of the root of Swallow-wort lb ss of white Sanicle, of Aristolochia rotunda, of Sow bread, ana ʒ i ss. put these herbes and rootes at the time of Vintage in a pipe of new wine, let it work together for three moneths, then take out the herbes, separating the wine, put fresh herbes into, and for to make the Wine of an Aromatick Fragrance.

Rx. Of Zinziber, of Calamus Aromaticus, of Cloves, ana ʒ i of Cinamon, of Mace, of Nutmegs, ana ʒ ss. Put these into a bag, and put it into the fat. Thus you have in store a medicinall wine outwardly to wash the sores, inwardly to be used for conglutinating wounds and ulcers; the patients will commend their Surgeons for it, because they furthered thereby their cure.

But if a Surgeon be more industrious for to make a more happy cure, by a chymicall

Art

Art of a most excellent use, he may extract the essence from Imperatoria, which is of a most excellent healing vertue. Imperatoria being well purg'd, and being beaten with a good deal of the whitest bread, being put into a hogs bladder, well shut and tyed, set deep in horse dung weekly, or at the seventh day looking to it, when it looks like purple Meath, then presse it out in a presse: the remainder must be digested againe, and then be prest out againe.

This viscous liquor is put in a body and digested in the Balmy for ten daies, at last distill it in ashes, the oyle and water comes over through the Helmet. These separate in a Balmy, with a gentle fire, then the phlegme cometh over, the essence of imperatoria remaineth in the bottom. like an oyle. Halfe an ounce of it and one scruple of salt, and three ounces of the best wine, with a decoction of any vulnerarie water or juice of Plantaine, being taken mornings and evenings, according as occasion serveth, and the necessity of the disease requireth, it healeth more, and agglutinateth all manner of fresh and old sores, then may be well expressed in a great volume, purging by sweat, urine, stool, bleeding, and an insensible transpiration.

That

That singular Arcanum is to be preferr'd also of Oculi Cancrorum, which by Pyrick Art for daily use, may be made thus: Pulverise subtilly the Oculi Cancrorum, being calcined must be set for a moneth with the essence of wine in a Balmy; still it overstrongly sixtimes, at last the oyle must be separated from the essence of wine a sixth time in a Balmy. One scruple of this oyle, with a dram of Treacle, or instill'd water of Fumitorie, must be taken mornings and eyenings, according to the condition of the disease, which expels all contrary things to Nature, by the mouth of the wound, either by running, bleeding, or other effect, not leaving the symptome till it be cured and conglutinated. Another nobler Medicament, is a Mysterium of the essence of Tartar, the antient Philosophers call'd it Ignis Adeptus, or Aqua Phlegetonica; which the Chymist prepareth thus:

Rx. Dregs of wine, or Tartar calcined in a reverberatorie lb iii. imbibe it with distill'd vinegar, putrify it for seven dayes in a Balmy, distill it as an Aquavita in an earthen retort (body;) at last put a strong fire under it, a black liquor comes over with the wine, which must be separated in a Balmy;

the

the remaining feces must be calcined again for 24 houres in a reverberatorie, and must be imbibed againe as formerly with distill'd wine, this worke must be iterated as often, that all the tartareous substance be found to be consumed. Afterward those rectified liquors must be exieated, then imbibe it with oyle or spirit of Vitrioll, as formerly the calcined Vitrioll was, and must be separated againe. One graine of this Medicine, with one dram of Mithridate $\frac{3}{4}$ of distill'd Succorie water, as the Patients condition requireth, often taken, extinguisheth the originall and prime cause of the disease, not a cicatrice will be seen, if any impure matter be left behind.

Here would be briefly demonstrated the true reason, whereby many could attaine unto the highest Medicine of Vulcan Metamorphosis, and the tincture of fixed Gemms by the help of the oyle of Thion, but by reason of the Philosophick fire, and of the infernall waters immense secrets, the laziness, avarice and vaine honour of this age is not to be edg'd on.

At last there are most excellent universals in Medicina, as the diaphoretick liquor of Ophirizon, that the soluble oyle of Sol, and tincture of the red Corals, which in like manner penetrate the whole body, and bring all open and gaping sores and exulcerations to their pristine integrity and health, as is sufficiently made manifest in our celestiall Medicina.

Hitherto we treated of Physical curations, now followeth that we treat of the Heavenly, which we divide into a specificall and characteristickall.

The specificall is, which among vegetables sheweth admirable effects, by a heavenly vertue of the firmament, affected with our body by a strong impression, without any preparation, separation or auctiō; but is instill'd by God into these earthly bodies, by meanes of astrall influence; therefore they ought to be applyed, as they are naked before our eyes.

Hydropiper hath received a marvelous quality by the heavenly influence, which if it be green drawn through a running water, and is laid to an open wound, no longer then one may be eating of an egg, being evaporated in hot flints, and put into the earth, and that be done in v. x. xv. dayes, as these herbes successively putrify, so the wound in that space of time healeth, and is cured, leaving ving no impediment behind. Though the wound or ulcer must be kept clean from all impurity, after these herbes are buried, however for a speedier healing, inward and outward medicaments are to be administered; of which hath been spoken.

By a like magnetick operation, Solidago Minor, or Dracunculus doth its office, that these parts may not conglutinate and unite which Nature would have open; many attempt to cure such rashly about the legs and feet with a fearful and dangerous limping or halting, who being forged by a timorous refuge, must take their instruction from these three plants, seeking for them in Fields and Acres. But if these herbes be dry, must be macerated in their own water, and must be applyed in that manner spoken of.

This admirable potencie of the Firmament, the good God hath set before our eyes to be used for other desperate diseases, as it is apparent in Hypericon, which being gathered in its constellation, and used any way, is the greatest Mysterium among the herbes, to expell Spectrums, Larves, and mad melancholy, whereby men many times fall into a phrensie, madnesse and despaire; among the Gemms, effect the same, the splendid

Splendidred Corals; among the animall, the
the blood of Pickerels is of the same efficacy.

In like manner amongst herbes, is a most noble Medicament, which is called Syderi-
cum, if its root be put in a glasse, full of water or wine, in which was hid any venome, breaketh it in pieces, but if the vessell be of Pewter or of silver, the water or wine in it begins to boyle, riseth and runneth out, nothing stayeth behind: Among Metals is Numus argenteus è Mercurio nostro confe-
ctus, being put to a dish or drinking pot,
doth the same: Among the Animals Uni- cornu verum doth the same, proved with a double black Taffety.

The like astrall vertue to heale gaping
fores or wounds, hath Symphitum Majus, the greater Comfry, which being drawn green
through water, and applyed to the wound,
to let it rot there, the rotten ones must be put away, and fresh applyed, healeth the wound wholly.

Of the like praise and commendation are Althea and Mercurialis, none of the herbs
can be more wished for, either by or of the patient, nor of the Physitian; I had often experience of it made at Ratisbone the last

last yeare, in desperate and most incurable diseases.

This also is to be added, that alwaies as the Comfry was rotten, the salt extracted from that herbe, I dissolved in its proper distill'd liquor, and purged the wound from the matter, and used the oyle of Symphitum also to anoint it withall, a fresh leafe drawn through cold water, applied it to the wound, proceeding with the rest ut supra. I made use also, if necessity required it, of the essence of this herbe, separating it by circulation in a Pellican, the dose was one Scruple in strong wine.

Their vertues being joyned with those of Physicall and Cœlestiall things, never any inveterate and obstinate open sore or wound hath deceived my undertakings, especially when I made use of Hydropiper.

Therefore these Magnalia endewed with a Heavenly astrall influence, ought not to be contemn'd by any Surgeon. As Chameleo Niger being gathered in the time of the operating influence, bringing to the other health, strength, and naturall vigour, bestoweth by a Nymphidick reason to that, which respecteth its splendor, and so on the contrarie, trarie, which is the last refuge to bring the decaying sterill stem of great houses upon another line.

I say nothing of the Magnetick Schmaragd, nor of the Electrin Pyralis, of such like marvelous thing, never any that are in Stoecho-mantin arts have written or published, which had not given a hint of this astrall influence. For all things have their predestinated time, either of their rising or decaying,

The Characteristick cure is this, which upon words spoken, written or graven, exerciseth its naturall potencie, by the heavenly quality of the astrals and severall influences, standing in affinitie with our bodies, consisting of numbers, Geometrical figures, and other significations of fingers. But I omit this last part of my proposition, by reason of the great contempt of this ungratefull age, and its sinister and rash judgement, that I may not prostitute these great benefits of curing any ulcers and wounds by constellated words, into which is imprinted an influence by art. This I speak experimentally, that seven words imprinted on a golden lamin, doth actually effect, which fals according to the expectation of the patient and Physitian, and many many other constellated words of vulnerated men, being heard but of onewounded afar off, without any medicament is healed, in case absent physitian doth but know the absent patient, and the cure can be perform'd a hundred German miles off. Moreover in such a cure more miraculous hidden mysteries are hid of the Patriarchs, and antient Prophets, and may be spoken of, these and such like naturall secrets every perfect Physitian hath need to know them. For in case of necessity, what can commend and prefer a Physitian without any damage of his conscience more, then in the very moment of suffocation, by a meer speaking of five words to help a patient, and to draw out the bones or cares without pain, sticking to the throat? Here availe nothing, the Pharmâcopelian itineraries, and the crooked instruments of Chyrurgeons, which little availe in any such subitanean case, because alwaies things are made worse when such instruments were used, and the Patients are very seldom eased, unlesse presently great and approved secrets be in readinesse to be used. What better and pleasanter thing can happen to a souldier, who is destitute of all hope and help, by the blow given to him in any heure

hour upon any astrall influence whatsoever, if by the help of some constellated words spoken, any crooked arrow, or other shot, or beaten into his flesh, to take it out with two fingers, by the place it went in? Here is no need of cauteries or pyroteries appropriated for capacities fitted, the weapon must be drawn forth freely; neither is there any need here of section, or rather butchery, the piece of the weapon must not be turned, nor must the weapon that is in the flesh be cut or broken in pieces. What should refresh more a travelling man, if any bullet had been shot into his bladder, to get it out without paine, by some spell laid upon? A way with that tyrannicall mutuall investigation of Chyrurgeons; about which many of the Patients, either fall into swooning under their hands, or die quite outright. What nobler thing can be had in stanching of Bleeding or the running of the glutinous humors call'd Sinovia, where the totall vertue of the bodie groweth defective, then when a wise Physitian with one word wearing about his neck, without any hurt or application of any other medicaments doth stay it? Thus all such desperate diseases are cured by a characteristick way way

astre
for of s ne
rath
high ster
inte
fect
pude
to sp
neit
the f
by s
may to al
who fend Meg
with the p rable
writ
such of m
good
A

way being endowed with a celestially and astrally inflowing quality, which Arts by reason of ignorance of some, and the contempt of some foolish Physicians, lie hid in darkness, and these blasphemous Alastors, will rather detract the honour from God in these high and miraculous operations of Characteristick cures, and attribute them to a bad intention, then to God who is the only effectual cause thereof. By reason of their impudence, I omit this Characteristick Art, to speak of such motions and commotions, neither will I make mention any more of the first Adams antient Philosophie, gotten by Semhamaphor of Rhaziell, whereby man may by a divine means, get and attaine unto all, what ever his minde may desire. For whoever is a true and serious lover and defender of truth, he may finde about me these Megaleia and secrets at Ingolstadt; wherewith I have made severall experiments in the presence of great Doctors, and honourable Persons, and desire these and other writings of mine to be made approved to all such which wish well unto me, upon paine of my body, honour, and the losse of my goods.

And thus much spoken of the physick
and

and heavenly cure of all sores, ulcers and wounds, to be begun by the center, beseeching Chyrurgeons, that walk on the true way, to accept of this my faithfull work for the promoting of Gods honour, and the good of the neighbour; and thus I pray they may construe it, till I bring forth greater and clearer matters.

The

The Chymicall Furnace.

O F

GEORGE PHÆDRO.

Which containeth the Compositions of the chiefest Secrets.

Gold is broken in its Metalline Nature and malleableness by water of Salt : and this water is made by a sanguineous distilling, without addition. It is a naturall salt, which we use daily at our meales. This water of Salt is washed from the Gold by sweet raine-water : The same also is distilled to the highest degree, then the tincture of Gold is detracted from the body by spirit of Wine.

G

This

this is made meerly of Wine, without any other addition: and the spirit of Wine is made again out of Wine, without any other addition. This is abstracted againe from Gold, and thus the Gold without any addition is graduated into a volatility, so that it may be brought into a liquor; in this manner is made also the Liquor of Corals, Pearles, and others, as also of Silver. And so there is nothing added unto such Medicines, but Salt, Wine, and Water: but not a potent Water, as some Chymists and Artists make.

*The Essence of Wine and of Herbes,
from which are made Aqvavita's.*

TAKE of the best red wine or Spanish wine lb viii. macerate it in a large Pellican, or Circulatorie in hot horse-dung, for a month, or in a Balmy for thirty dayes; then there will swimme on the Phlegme an olaginous Liquor, which with a very gentle fire in a Violl must be so long separated coldly, till that tender and pure fatnesse, or the vegetable spirit of Wine come no more distilling from the Alembick; digest that again in any a Balmſy for xxx dayes. Then you have ſi.

 is of Wine, one ſcruple of the Eſſence, the her true Elixir for the prolonging of life. From om that may be made golden Water, or Aqua-di-vitæ: if Plants and Spices mixed with ſpifo-rit of Wine be macerated for a Philoſophick his time; as, Melitena, Celandine, Elleborus, als, Roſemarie, together with Cloves, Ginger,
 and Cinamom, Nutmegs, and the like. If you edi-proceed in this manner in the drawing of not the Eſſence out of one pound of Hydropi-Ar-per, you will get two ſcruples of the Eſ-ſence.

There is another more compendious way to diſtill by a Balmſy and cold Water, with an Alembick, whole receiver hath a double neck.

Liquor of Ophirizum.

THe Liquor of Ophirizum, among other Secrets, is an univerſall medicine to powerfull, that it defends the whole body,
 and being corrupted, reſtoreth it to former health: And is made thus; Ophirizum by the regal Cement, or Antimonie Lamina
 muſt be diſſolved in the green Liquor of ſalt
 into a powder, which afterward muſt be 3 G 2 waſhed

washed in a distilled Cœlestiall Water, to get off all its saltneffe : or if you will proceed more nimble, cement the Lamins of Ophirizum, together with Lamins of Saturne, covered for xxiv houres, then disjoine them, then is your Solar Calx prepared. Then upon the washed powder, or purged Calx poure spirit of Wine, that it stand over it six fingers breadths, and the junctures being well luted, macerate them in a Balmy for xx or xxx dayes ; then poure forth the Citrin Liquor, leaving in the bottome a most Candid powder, and separate the spirit of Wine very subtilly in a Balmy, from the yellow Liquor of Ophirizum.

At last the extracted colour of gold must be five times driven in a Retort, then is your quintessence of Sol, or the potable gold, perfect, whole gr. iii. are given in aqua Dracunculi. This Liquor of Ophirizum maketh the spirit of Wine as dead, alive, increaseth the radical Humidum, and so corroborateth the whole body, that nothing goeth beyond it. This Liquor, I say, openeth the pores, and nimble penetrateth all the parts of the body, rectifieth the corrupted blood, consumeth superfluous humours, and confirmeth or strengtheneth

univers

universally all the Faculties and their Functions: Lastly, by the benefit of this Ophirizum, to speak by particular of it, every intemperateness is cured, even Obstruction, Phlegmon, Tumor, Putredo, Impostume, Fever, Pest, Madnesse, Falling-sickness, Apoplexie, the Palsie in any part of the body, Defluxions, shortness of breath, Consumption, Pleurisie, trembling of the Heart, Cho-lick, corruptness of the Liver, of the Spleen,
 the Scirrhus-arquatus, Malus-habitus, Drop-sic, the Cholick, the Iliack-passion, all manner of Fluxes, the Wormes, Hemerods, the Stone of the Kidneys and Bladder, the virulent Gonorrhea, Diabetes, Ischuria, the Rupture, the Concourse of Hysterical symptomes, the oppression of the Moneth, and their immoderate flowing, the Whites, the rising of the Mother, and the falling down
 of the womb, Sterility, all manner of Gouts, Chiragra, Gonagra, Ischias or Sciatica, Elephantia, or Leprosie, Venereall Infection,
 the bitings of venomous beasts, the Anthrax,
 Cancer, small Pox, Herpes Exedens, Gangrene, Fistula, eating Ulcer. To speak it in a word, the Liquor of Ophirizum expel-leth and cureth radically all inward Diseases of the body, and all outward ones, which any other Medicament cannot cure by reason of their extreame malignity ; and the feall necessity, being Gods pleasure, do not permit their cure.

The Oyle of Pearles.

REcip. Of prepared Pearles ʒ ii. of distilled well purged vinegar lb ss. (in stead of vinegar may be used spirit of wine, one quart of it.) Macerate it in a circulatorie for a moneth, then the pearles doe dissolve into a ponderous juice, cast off the rest of the liquor. This whole dissolved masse may be separated per alembick, in the same way as the gold was. The dose of the oyle of Pearles is gr. vi. which preserveth the body in the same vigor of ill, restoreth the same to its former health ; it hath not its fellow in curing of phrensie, palsie in any part, the cramp, sleepinesse in old people, correcting and augmenting the milke in women, and in rectifying the seed, apostemes and eating ulcers, and hemerods.

The

The tincture of Corals.

Poure spirit of wine on subtilly pulverised red Corals, the spirit of wine must stand over them a hand-breadth, and the glasse beeing well luted must be macerated in hot horledung for a moneth. Note, it must be driven six or ten times into a Receiver : but it may be prepared in a shorter way, namely, if once driven over, then let it macerate againe in horledung for a sennight, so that it be macerated foure times in one moneth, and be driven foure times in open fire ; afterward it must be distilled ten or sixteen times according to Art. Then separate the spirit of wine in a Balmy, being poured on againe six times that spirit which is distilled, then is settled to the bottome a most red and cleare oyle of Corals. The dose of it is one scruple, given in Succorie water, in good wine, or in a decoction of Chamaedrys. This soule I say, this pearle of Corals is one of the greatest mysteries in Medicine, and is our most rarest treasure whereby radically are cured all inward and outward symptomes, and the distempered body is restored to a perfect constitution. The quintessence essence of Corals cureth in five weeks time all manner of convulsions in young and aged people, it stayeth any loosenesse, come it from what cause it will, in young and aged people, though it be come unto an extremity: it stablisheth blond in any part of the body, be it used any way: it stayeth the monethly courses, and reduceth nature unto a good temper, and leaveth not matter for recourse in the other parts of the body, as other medicaments usually doe.

As the oyle of Corals is made, in the same manner is made also the oyle of Gemms, as of Smaragd, Rubie, Hyacinth, the stones of Garnets, Lycy, Cyanci &c.

The essence of Antimonie.

THere is great store of Antimonie in mines of Germany, as at Tachtelborg, and at Plana, a City in Bohemia; in Italy also about Massa is found some. The best Antimonie is found in Carinthia, and County of Tyrol; where there are golden Mines. The yellow is of the best, the next is of a Saffron colour, and the third is blackish. This among other fruits of the water, hath as many virtues and so good ones, that they scarce can

be

be expressed by man. It hath an inward efficacie from the first Originall and creation of things unto this day, and continued inviolably, neither hath the deluge ever infringed its native power, and stuck stilly to heavens influence to which it was inflaved. Hence our most noble subject is reduced to its prima materia, so that the fire doth glitter every way like the Æther. It taketh away the cause of any disease, and transformes the impure body so, that it seemeth to want nothing of its most perfect health.

The manner of the making is thus.

Antimonie well pulverised must be reverberated for a moneth in a closed pot, and there breatheth forth a volatile flower which is of a white colour; then there commeth a yellow or citrin flower, after that there commeth a red and of a purple colour. Take of these red flowers two ounces, of rectified spirit of wine quart iii. macerate them for twelve daies in a circular Pellican, and separate them in a balmy, the essence of Antimonie stayeth in the bottom, which reneweth unto mans body all his strength: The dose of it is gr. iii. in Baulm

Bauhm water, or Celandine water, or in good wine.

It cureth leprosie, and many other almost incurable diseases by insensibility; all diseases are cured thereby radically, and whatever distempers the body, move them any other mysterious medicines, and bringeth Microcosme to a most perfect health.

An Arcanum of the Quintessence:

Rx. Of sulphur 3 lb. of spirit of Wine 3xx circulate it for a moneth in the Sun, then distill it per alembick. Adde thereunto of Sulphur 3 lb. lute and macerate, and then distill it, out of these flowers you have Mumia terræ, and such a Balsame, which preserveth from putrefaction both alive and dead bodies, and protects them in that solidness, that no elementall corruption can hurt it. And for that reason the Balsame of Sulphur goeth beyond all other philosophick tinctures. Its dose is gr. v. in old white wine: And if you will make it more effectually, then take the white flowers of Sulphur gr. i. of Antimonie 3 i. of oyle of Gold 3 lb. of spirit of wine 3 v. macerate it for a moneth, and bring it to a hard Inais: Its dose is 3 lb.

Mer:

Mercurius dulcis.

ARgent vive among metals is of a special and admirable nature, containing a vertue of all the rest: It is good against all manner of ulcers, purging the body radically, reneweth the body, there is hardly any more effectuell mysterium, and is made thus. First, Mercury is coagulated by common Allom water, and is subtilly pulverised: Then abstract from Mercury the water of the white of eggs from the moiety of its calx, and bring it to a corallin colour: Its dose is gr. iii. with treacle. The water of the white of eggs is made thus: The white must be distill'd, and the shels of eggs must be calcined, and the water of the white of eggs is poured on the calcined shels, thus is your water of eggs prepared.

Spirit of Vitriol.

THat kinde of salt, which the Greeks call Chalcanthum, and in Latine is called atramentum metallorum, is severall, according to the diversity of Mines. Some of it is white, some is greenish, others is blew, mingled mingled with red and yellow veines, and differ much one from another. In Germany it groweth, at Goslar in Saxonie, at Cunperbach in Bohemia, at Smolnitz in Hungarie, in Italy in the Molsan ground at Senenssem agrum. In Cyprus the vitriol crude, the more it expels the wormes, or transmuted iron into copper, the more usefull is it in Medicina and Chymia. Moreover, the secret of Chalcantum consists of a tripple matter: The preparation of it is thus. Chalcantum being driven with a vehement fire nine times, then forced in a retort, in an athanor kept for four daies and nights, then you have a most noble and most effectual spirit. Then the Colcothar from a red viol in like manner in an athanor for three dayes is distilled with a forcible fire, and in the receiver you will have lb i. of Colcothar, 3 vi of red oyle. From the remainder is drawn the salt, which must be dissolved foure or five times, and vaporated againe to a salt.

Tartar

Tartar.

R*Ecip.* Of crude Tartar washt in wine lb iii. and pulverise it, and according to the degrees of fire distill it like an aquafort, there commeth over a cleare liquor and a blackish juice, each of these must be distill'd apart in sand foure times, the feces must be alwaies put away : at last for the taking away its intellerable stink, it must be rectified subtilly in a Pellican, then you have a well prepared liquor of Tartar, which is of that efficacy, that it penetrateth all the body throughout.

Lastly, take of the æthereall essence of Wine, which in the circulation hath gotten a fragrancy $\frac{3}{4}$ x. of treacle $\frac{3}{4}$ v. of red Roman Myrrhe $\frac{3}{4}$ ii lb of Austrian Saffron, $\frac{3}{4}$ lb. Mixe and distill these, then is your Treacle water prepared. For the making of the Chalcantin Arcanum, take off spirit of Chalcantum quart i. of the liquor of Tartar quart iii. Macerate these againe the philosophick time : Its dose is $\frac{3}{4}$ i. to be taken in good wine. This is a divine Arcanum and Elixer, penetrateth the whole body insensibly, nimble consuming such matters that are hurtfull hurtfull unto the body, especially if other peculiar things be added thereunto. If it be ministred for a moneth mornings and evenings, cureth the Gout, and the parts pained are to be annointed with this mixture.

Rx. Of that liquor z i. of Mummie quart i. Mix it.

The Philosophick Salts.

R Ecip. Of the salt of Valeriana, of Succorie, of Chamedris, ana z i. of Wormwood z ii. of Vitriol z i. of common salt lb i. Mix these. Or;

Rx. Of the salt of Vincetoxicum, of black Chameleon, of Celandine, ana z i. of common salt $\text{lb } \beta.$ Mixe these. Or;

Rx. Of the salt of Gold, of Antimony, of Melitena, ana $\text{z } \beta.$ of common salt $\text{lb } \beta.$ Mix these.

An Extract of Satyrion.

R Ecip. Of the roots of Satyrion, cleanse and beate them, temper them with a little quantity of the whitest bread, put it in a glasse and lute it, macerate it in warm horse dung, take it out weekly, and when it looketh looketh like a red cremor, presse it strongly very dry; add to the remainder more bread; macerate again, presse it, take out all the juice from it. This creme must be digested in a balmy for x daies, and then in ashes distill'd, the phlegme and oyle must be driven over, which in a Balmy afterward must be separated. The dose of the oyle of Satyrion is \mathfrak{z} i with one scruple of the salt of Melitena, and taken in good wine.

Mummy.

AS in the Macrocosme things can be transmuted by some secret or other: So of Microcosme, are things prepared which are very usefull. The manner of it is

Rx. Of rectified spirit of wine \mathfrak{lb} i. of the juice of Celandine, of Melitena, ana quart i. Circulate these in horse dung for twelve daies, separate them in a Balmy and having macerated it again for a moneth, the Mummy being mixt with it, the Mummy must be dissolv'd in it, separate artificially in a Balmy Lastly adde to \mathfrak{z} vi of this liquor, oyle Turpentine, of the Turks sealed earth, of the oyle of Ophirizum, ana \mathfrak{z} s. Circulate it againe for a moneth; then you have a Microcosmick crocosmick Treacle of Mummy, a most rare Myſterium, very effectually againſt any poiſon. Its doſe is ʒ i.

Hermaphrodite.

IN Chymiſtrie is found by experience that the Hermaphrodite containeth all the vertue of the other Minerals; hence it muſt needs have a healing qualitie on mans body. Becauſe he is nothing then the eſſence of Minerals; if the Anatomie of Microcoſme be conferr'd with Macrocoſme. Therefore the Hermaphrodite reſtoreth mans entire body, be it corrupted by what cauſe it will, to a moſt perfect ſymmetry, inſomuch, that no perfecter medicine can be wiſh'd for to prolong the life in a perfect health. The ſoul of Hermaphroditus is made thus.

Rx. Of the Mercuriall eſſence of Cyprus-Vitriol, coagulate in its definite time of Philoſophers ſet, then ariſeth the ſaphirick flower of Hermaphrodite, an admirable Myſterium of Macrocoſme. One part of it put into 3000 parts of diſſolved Ophirizum tranſmuteth all into its owne nature; one dram of this put to a thouſand drams of Copper, transmuteth it into most pure gold. So one graine of the Hermaphrodite, and one scruple of Treacle taken now and then in good Wine, restoreth a distempered body to its pristin and naturall constitution; and if you apply it outwardly unto any symptome, with distill'd water of Hydropiper, it is more effectuell then any balsame, and cureth any symptome, sooner then other Chirurgicall meanes. This Hermaphrodite is the tincture known to those that are buied in the Chymick Monarchie, by name called the stone, its proper name is the æthereall Fire, involved infinitely in obscure riddies.

I adde this also, out of Phadro Agrippa, the Philosophers Stone is a secret of secrets, if you wish for happiness, that you may obtaine the Philosophers blessing; God liveth for ever. There is one object in the World for all, which properly is called of the Philosophers; in the shell stayeth the white, which containeth the red: The one is called the male, the other the female, an animal, vegetable, and minereall: Its fellow is no where found, it hath an active and passive power, a dead and quick substance, a Spirit and Soule, which ignorant men hold it a most vile thing, containeth in its bosome the foure Elements, found every where, commonly had by every one, is of a small price; one pound is sold for a shilling: It voluntarily ascendeth, groweth black, descendeth and groweth white; increaseth and decreaseth; it is a thing which the earth produceth, and descendeth from Heaven; groweth pale, and groweth red; it is born and dyeth, riseth againe, and liveth afterward; hath severall wayes to goe to its end: Its proper decoction goeth beyond that of the fire; is slow, modest, strong, and is augmented, and at last in a secure rest is it rubified. This according to expectation, is called the Philosophers Stone. Read, and read it againe, over and over, you will finde more plaine no where: If you are still dull in your understanding, then are you not fit for this Art to learn it.

*How salt of Gemm, and the water of salt
is prepared.*

SALT of Gemm, the purest of all, being subtilly pulverised, being put into a melting pot, and set in a wind-oven, standing in a gentle fire, let it stand on melting for three houres, houres, if the pot holdeth so long, let it cool of it selfe. Pulverise this, and set it in a pot againe into the Furnace; it must be iterated five or six times, and pulverise it still. Take a quantity of the juice of Radishes, as much as the salt weigheth, put some of it in a wooden dish, grind it with a spoon; that which is dissolved of the salt; thus hot, straine it, and so go on with the rest, and dissolve all the salt in this juice, and straine it: Coagulate it, or distill the water from it, pulverise it againe, poure the distill'd water on it; putrifie it in a Balmy for six daies and nights, separate the water from it by distilling, let your first fire be gentle, as you usually doe at the distilling of Aquafort, let all distill over, then encrease the fire, to calcine for an houre.

This warme Salt must be pulverised, and grinde it on a stone, let it dissolve on a Marble. Being dissolved, let it in a Balmy to putrifie for three daies; then put it in a strong body, distill it in Sand, use the degrees of fire according to Art. The remaining body being pulverised, must be dissolved againe on a Marble, must be putrified as formerly, and distill'd a third time: The remainder must be very subtilly pulverised, put in a body,

H 2

poure

poure on it the three distill'd waters, let them putrifie for five daies and five nights, after this, distill it againe in grosse Sand ; at last let all come over through the Helmet, a Caput mort remaineth, which must be put away : But all the water for a day and a night to be putrified in Sand, which is separated from the substance of the Salt, then is to be distill'd per Alembicum. This putrifying and distilling must be iterated a third time, then you have the water of Salt. At the putrifying and distilling, the Vessels must be well luted, that none of the Spirits get away.

The essence of Sol.

TAke Gold purged three times by Antimonie, very tinnly laminated, or in its place, take fine Gold, put it in a bolt-head, poure on it the spirituall water of Salt, seale it Hermetically : Set it in digestion for foure or five daies, that they joyn, then open it, take off the neck in part, and set an Alembick on it, lute it well, set it so long into Ashes, apply a receiver, lute the glasses junctures very well ; distill it five or six times, and when it is cold, put the Gold and all the mat-matter in the body, into a jar glass ; dulcifie it with distill'd raine-water, from all its salt-ness ; the Gold remaineth in the bottom like a powder, for the Salt is not turn'd into the Golds substance. Pour Spirit of Wine on this Alcoholised Gold, not a simple Aquavitz, standing over the Gold six fingers deep, proportionably unto the Gold. Putrifie it for a moneth in a Balmy, the Spirit of Wine drinketh the tincture of Gold, which must be put into another glass. For a further extraction, poure more Spirit of Wine on it a second and third time, let all its tincture be extracted, the body of Sol remaineth whitish and soule-less : At last, separate the Spirit of Wine in a Balmy, from the form Gold, and use it according to the manner you heard of.

A præcipitate of Sol.

IF you intend to prepare the præcipitate of Sol, then the Gold being dulcified with distill'd raine-water, and dryed, then proceed.

Spirit of Wine.

TO make the true Spirit of Wine. Take a quantity of the strongest Wine, without any mixture, be it white or red, the white is better, leaving less alcoll then the red, which runneth in no other form or colour then the white doth; cause it to be distilled like an Aquavita, either in copper or glass, distilling coole. Taste one drop or other, if it commeth weak, then take off the receiver, apply a blind Helmet to it, of a good bigness, lest the motion of the Spirits breake it if too narrow; set it on three foot, let it boyle for ten dayes. After you have opened, apply a head with a pipe, distill in a Balmy, and the Spirits come over. The manuell depends from these three. The glass with the wine must not stand too deep in the water, and the junctures must be well luted to keep in the Spirits, and then the Spirit must not be mingled with the burning Wine; which would easily happen, if the Balmy should be made too hot. Therefore observe the signes well: When little veines or drops appeare in the Alembick, then cease, for the following is burning Wine,

Wine, and the receiver must be removed.

Salt of Wine.

PROCEED as you heard, according to the first distilling, when all the strength of the Wine is gone, then commeth the phlegm or waterish matter, let that be evaporated in a Kettle by boyling, or if you feare the Kettle to be endangered by the fire, put the matter into a narrower vessell, and force it, there remaineth a yellow and impure substance, which must be dryed, you have then a Tartar of a black colour, from which, being very subtilly pulverised, and most strongly calcined, with a cole or wood fire, you can have the salt.

Alcolised Spirit of Wine.

AND if you will have a most strong, and most fully graduated Spirit of Wine, for the opening and attracting of bodies, and for gradation of formes, take of the Spirit of Wine as much as you please, dissolve its salt in it, let it stand in digestion well luted for a naturall day, set it in Sand or ashes, observe the degrees of fire, apply a large receiver, poure the spirit on the salt againe, this salt must be calcined againe to a whitenesse, poure Spirit of Wine on it, and shake it, and distill it againe; weigh the Salt to see whether it lost of its ponderosity; if it be too much fix'd, then putrifie it in Spirit of Wine in a Balmy; lastly, distill it so long, that all the salt be gone through the Alembick; and thus you have a Noble a'colifated Spirit.

The essence and forme of hearbes.

THere is drawn from flowers and hearbes a specificall true property and colour, the body not being destroyed, as Theophrastus demonstrateth in his treatise de vita longa, and elsewhere: if the simples are put over night in the said Spirit of Wine; if you will separate, then doe it in a wet Balmy, the form like a liquor, remaineth in the bottom.

How

How the essence is drawn from hearbes.

AN Y herbe being first beaten in a stone Morter, together with the flowers, leaves and roots to a pap, being well luted, must stand in digestion for a moneth in horse-dung. Distill it dry in a Balmy; the remaining powder must be grinded upon a stone, and must be imbibed with its distill'd liquor, and digest it for a fortnight. After that let it be distill'd in ashes, phlegme and oyle comes over together, which must be separated asunder, and the oyle must be safely kept. The remaining feces must be very subtilly pulverised, poure the phlegme on it, digest them for ten or twelve daies in horse-dung, separate the phlegme in sand. The remaining black powder must be albified in a reverberatorie, pouring on it its phlegme, and extract its salt.

Diaphoretick Gold.

VV Hich purgeth the blood, and the marrow in bones and the whole body. Draw the red colour from the red Mercurie, being prepared with the water of eggs eggs by the said Spirit of Wine, as you heard above: Put an equall quantity of the soule of Gold, let it stand in putrefaction to be purged, then separate the liquor from the Spirit of Wine: the dose of it is gr. iij. vel iij. to be taken in Malmsey, for three daies together fasting. Theophrastus saith, that this liquor cureth the Leprosie, contractures, and purgeth the blood mightily. More of this I spoke in the administration of Magna Chirurgia.

Of Mummy.

Recip. Of well cut Mummy, put it into a Retort well luted, adding thereunto a like quantity of Sallet oyle for a moneth. the Retort being taken out, then cut some of the nose of it, set it in sand, lute a receiver to it, and drive the stinking Mercury into it. Then set it in a place, where the people of the house may not be annoyed, into a Balmy for five or six daies; thus the residue of the Mercurie will vapour away, in that warm Balmy. Cant of the liquor, the part indissolved is to be kept in the Balmy: Mixe with it $\frac{3}{4}$ vi of Treacle, of the best Mosch $\frac{3}{4}$ i. and keep it in the Balmy, or in hot ashes in a Furnace for a month.

Turbith Minerale.

I had two waies to prepare the Minerall Turbith, first if the water of eggs from their calx be often digested and distill'd, attracteth its sweet volatile salt, and by this evasion it deserved among the antients the name of Corrosivum dulce, mortifieth Mercury, and rubifyeth like Corals, its digesting and distilling being repeated: From this red Mercury can be drawn its essence by the Spirit of Vitriol, extracting it as long as the Spirit takes any tincture from it, which may be done at the xv or xvi iteration: The remaining Caput mort must be put away.

The second way differs from the first. Put a strong Aquafort upon two parts of tyle-meale, and adde one part of salt, distill it; the Aquafort will be as red as a Ruby, which must be abstracted to a third part from Mercury by a strong fire, and the Mercury must be grinded on the Marble twelve times, and then distill'd, being distill'd must be digested from its calx with water of eggs, and being often distill'd, then your Turbith Minerale is prepared.

Rx. Of

Rx. Of this Turbith gr. v. Mixe it with one ounce of the juice of Roses, to be taken before supper, mornings fasting gr. iiii. by night foure graines are to be taken. If it causeth any spume in the mouth, and the Patient falls into spawling, then adde to it, some-what of Vitrum of Antimony, or of its reverberated powder; then a gentle purging it will give. After that must be gi- the quantity of a Hasell nut of Theriaca Alexandrina, and make the Party sweat. These Patients may use also the following Gargarisme.

Rx. Halfe a quartern of burning Wine, of Sugar candy \mathfrak{z} i. small pulverised, adde one spoonfull of the best Hony, mixe these and make a Gargarisme, as long as the Turbith is used, nothing ought to be applyed to the wound or ulcer, but this following plaister, neither ought it to be used above three times the Turbith, and its operation is to be waited for.

Rx. Of Bdellium, of Serapium Colatum, ana \mathfrak{z} i. of Frankincense, of Mummy, ana \mathfrak{z} iii. of Wax \mathfrak{z} i. of Colophonia \mathfrak{z} vi. Make these to an Oppodeldoch, according to Art, it will purifie the more, if one dram of our Turbith Minerall be mingled.

Turbith Minerall being ministred with Spirit of Tartar, provoketh sweating in the bed, and draweth plisters and the like outwardly.

Alcool Vini.

Alcolifated wine, Centrated Wine, Essentificated Wine with Alcool, Alcool of Wine, Essatum Vinum, Esse vini is as much as Essentificatum: That is, when the essence of Wine comes over by distilling, then its phlegme remaineth in the bottom like the dregs of Honey; which if they have any Empyreuma or fierinesse, the phlegme must be poured on again, and is to be separated till the phlegm be gone from the essence. Then poure the distill'd essence of wine on the phlegmes, and separate it by distilling, which must be iterated so often, till the feces sticking to the bottom be white glittering, which are Theophrastus his Alcool Vini, Sal Vini, or Vinum Alcolifatum.

Oleum

Oleum Auri sive Axungia.

Theophrastus calls it Axungia, or butter of Sol, to be taken inwardly for the Fistula or Cancer, and outwardly to be used for an ointment : Its preparation is thus. Pour on the filings of gold, oyle of Mastix, which having stood in digestion a moneth in horse-dung, wash it off from the oyle with warm water ; let it stand again in digestion in Spirit of Wine for ten or twelve dayes, the Spirit being separated, you find an oleaginous matter in the bottom, like unto butter. Take some drops of it at the beginning, in a vehicle.

The Spirit of Tartar for sweating.

LET the Tartar be well purg'd and wash'd in Wine, dry it and pulverise it, put the glasse with it into a wind-Furnace, distill per Alembic, as the oyle of Mastix is distill'd, there comes over a thick matter, of colour and fragrancy like a Treacle.

The

The oyle of Saturne and its Salt.

Lead in the first place is to be calcined, thus. Set a glased panne over the fire, put the lead into it, calcine it, stirring it with a spatule, at first it will look blackish, then yellow, at last it is of a red colour, pour distill'd Vinegar on it, two fingers breadth standing over it. Boyle it a little, when the scum riseth, then take it off the fire, and let it settle gently, and cant off the Vinegar into another pot, from the calcined Saturne. New Vinegar must be poured on the Lead, and this must be iterated as long as there is any sweetness in the Lead. These being done, let the gathered matter or a cctum be settled in the Balmy; let the Vinegar be gotten off, there remaineth a sweet Purple body in the bottom. To this matter, poure the Heavenly water, and let it boyle, it will cast a white scum, which must be taken off, as long as there ariseth any, cast away the remaining purple-dregs in the bottom. The off taken scum must be put in a Balmy, either to be vapored away or distill'd, it leaveth a dry and whitish body in the bottom of the glass, which must be dissolved in some

some noble Aquafort, and be separated three or foure times in a Balmy, where you will behold a faire dissolution; on this matter poure againe the distill'd rain-water, separate the same in a Balmy, this must be iterated as long as there is left any acrimony of the Aquafort, you will see a white transparent matter, the true and sweet salt of Saturn, being put into a Cellar, or any wet place, will dissolve into a water or oyle, whereby outward and desperate lores or cancrus ulcers are healed, and is an approved medicine.

Dr Daniell in his time, used only Lead dissolved in Aquafort, which he dulcified with fountaine water: An effectuall remedy ad ulcera Cacoethe, linnen being dipped into, and put into the places, using only the water, not medling with the powder of the Lead in the bottom.

The essence of Antimony.

CRude Antimony being reduced into a most subtile Alcooh, put it into a Retort, evaporate it in the degrees of reverberation, then scale it, and let it reverberate gently, provided it doe not melt. The venomous humour

hamor and Sulphur being evaporated, when it looks like a cineritious powder, then the middle degree of fire is to be used for eight or ten daies continually. Then use such a degree of fire to it, that the Antimony look of a purple colour'd powder. Take of this reverberated Antimony ℥ ii. as much of circulated Aquavix, that it stand over it six fingers. Let it be digested in a well luted circulatory for twelve daies, then at the distilling in a Balmy separate it, then the Aquavix will be tinged, which is the true essence of Antimony. The dead powder of it stayeth in the bottom: Its dose is ʒ i. more or lesse.

The use of the essence or tincture of Antimony

Three graines of it taken in Wine, cureth the Quartan, and all manner of Agues. Mr Thomas hath cured with it two Patients of the Dropsie, ministring two or three drops, mornings in white Wine; it giveth three or foure stools, penetrating and searching the whole body: It causeth a faintnesse to the Members for an houre or upward, but after that, it restoreth strength unto them; if there be any tumor within, dissolveth the same by sweat and urine. It disperleth the Hydropick humour diaphoretically. An excellent remedy for bringing down the Courses, curing the jaundies and Cholick. He used successfully to boyes of three or foure yeares old; also the Quartane and Tertian Ague he prosperously cured with it. It is a rare medicine against the Venerall disease, cured foure such Patients with it. He cured a woman with it which had the foule disease seventeen yeares, having had eleven such tumours in the head, two in the arms; these were dissolved only by the oyle of it. The tincture of Antimony is used against the venereall Itch and Scabs. The Patient ought not to come into the air, must be kept warm, and not walking abroad. He cured the Scropula, which posselt the whole Face; thus: He purged the Partie severall times with Vitrum Antimonii: after that, hee caused a decoction to be made of wine, in which was Vincetoxicum, both Centories, Saniele, and sometimes Pyrola: The potion being strained, he applyed the roots warm in bags, and thus did he restore that Patient.

He restored one Woman with the essence of Antimony, which was troubled with three

three and twenty open sores in her Legs, & reliques of the venereall disease.

Phaedro made use of Vitrum Antimonii twice on a most desperate Hectick Feaver. He that maketh use of the essence or of Vitrum of Antimony, let him avoid the aire.

He cured a Ploughman with Vitrum of Antimony, which was much molested with corrosions, expelling a great worm, 124 and little ones.

He cured another thus: He ministred unto him sixteen times of that Vitrum, who had two hundred holes between the Knee and the Knockle, purging him first downward, then by vomiting, taking away all the paines, only with calcined Vitrioll, and a mundificative unguent.

This Phaedro hath cured also one that was troubled with the Gout, and another Woman, with the same Antimoniall essence, out of whose skull there grew scales. He cured also two desperate Hectick Feavers, and some that had the Quartan Ague. And so it cureth Imposthumes, and malignant excrescencies, worms, the Gout, venereall paines and tumours, the Hectick Feaver, and the quartan.

Theophrastus his Laudanum Opianum
which he made use of against all manner of Agues, as a Specificum.

Phadro his is this.

REcip. Of the best Opium Thebaicum, being cut ʒ ii. of Mummy gr. iii. of the juice of the root of Hyosciamus ʒ i. which must be gathered when Sol and Luna enter Libra, which is eight or five daies before St Johns day.

Put it into a glasse, and digest at the Sun for fourteen daies, then is the Opium prepared.

Rx. Of Species of Diambra ʒ i ʒ of Wine rectified five times lb i. Let these also be digested at the Sun for fourteen daies, shaking it daily three or foure times; then poure some red clear Wine on the prepared Opium, make it to a pap, and then digest it againe for three daies in the Sunne, being well stop'd, and then let it be exiccated.
 Then make it to a more thick masse on a Marble, with a little of the said Wine, unto which you must adde of prepared red Corals,

als, of prepared Citrin Amber, ana ℥ i. of the best Molch or Amber gr. iiii. of Camphore gr. vii. of orientall Saffron ℥ i. Let small Pils be made of it, minister seven of them in ʒ ii. of Wine, to be swallowed; if the paine be vehement, minister vii about six of the clock, about nine, five, about foure of the clock, four of them to be taken in Wine. they admirably assuage all paines, and are ministred in all violent diseases for to preserve and to heale.

Note, Laudanum alwaies doth its worke in six houres time, which maketh the Patient to sleep for an houre; if there be any further use of it, then allow to its operation six houres.

The oyle of Realgar, or of Arsenick and its use.

REcip. Of Realgar as much as you please, which is ponderous and white, grinde it small on a stone, adde to it purged Sal-niter, let it dissolve on coales, the first fire must be gentle, that all venemous fumes may vapour away, and the matter of it be burnt. Being burn'd thoroughly, then increase the fire for foure or five houres, let the Arse-niek be like melting butter, all its venomous quality flyeth away, and a fix'd Realgar will be. Let it be in a Cellar on a Marble, distilling into a receiver, which is the fix'd oyle of Arsenic. Of this Theophrastus made use of very much, it may be better rectified, as the oyle of Sol, if made in a Retort, being poured on hot or heated Tiles. Outwardly Ulcers are anointed with all, and new Pocky sores, twice or thrice at the most: it maketh them run as long as there is any cause for it; w^{ch} cause being consumed, the ulcer gets an Eschara, which must be anointed with the following butter of Sol, fals off, not leaving any mark or red spot. If any such sore is to be annointed with this oyle, then the next place or skin to it is to be anointed also.

The Butter of Sol ad Escharum.

REcip. Of fresh May butter, as much as you please, poure it boyling into water of Bean flowers, or the decoction of Lupini, Solomons seale. Quench it thus a third time, it will be very white and faire: Use it as you heard.

Aquila precipitata.

1.

The purgation of Vitriol.

R Ecip. Of the best blew Hungarian Vitriol sixteen lb. put it into a glazed pot, poure on it cleare Fountaine or distill'd raine-water, boyle away a third part of it, filter or straine it into a jar-glasse, set this strained liquor into a moist sand to crySTALLI-zing, poure the water on againe, let it boile
 as formerly, iterate it so long as any Chri-stals will shoot, then all its venemous quality is gone. In like manner let the pulverised Salt-Niter be dissolv'd, and be purged, as you heard about the Vitriol.

2.

Purgation of Sal Armonicke.

R Ecip. Of Sal Ammonick, of calcined Tartar, ana lb i. sublime these twice or thrice in ashes.

Aqua fort.

Recip. Of the above prepared Vitriol, and rubified lb ii. of the above said prepared Niter, and well excoated at the Sun lb i. mix these being pulverised, distill gently at first, then increase your fire, let all the Spirits come over.

3.

To purge this Aqua fort.

Recip. Of this Aqua fort 3 ii or 3 ii lb. dissolve it in the thinnest Lamins of fine Lunc 3 ii. which being dissolved, put it altogether into a glais; the feces of it being settled, cant off the water, let none of the matter come after. Thus is the Aqua fort purged. Of this Aqua fort lb i. in which dissolve one graine of the salt Ammonick, prepared afore, distill it gently in a Balmy, then you have the prepared Arcanum Regis, or T R.

4. Pur.

Purgation of Mercury.

Poure hot water on calx vive, shake it, coole and settle; filtrate the water, and distill it hot into Flint-ashes, which if this be settled, then filter it. In this lie made of Calx vive, and ashes of Flints, Mercury must be boyled a sixth or seventh time, and that which boyleth away, must be applyed with fresh Lixivium. In like manner let Mercury be boyled a fourth time in salt and distill'd Vineger, so that the salt be covered with blackness, and the Vineger being evaporated, fresh Vineger to be poured on: At last let it be wash'd a third time with hot water, and dryed, then it is fit for subliming, præcipitating, and for other businesses.

5.

Purgation of Antimony.

R Ecip. Of powder of Antimony, of purged Sal-Niter, of Calcined Tartar

282 anastb 8. Melt it; thus melted, cast it into horne, which being cold, take off the Regulus, it breaketh freely.

1.

Rx. Of Regulus of Antimony z i . grind it small, imbibe in a jar-glasse six times with Aqua Regis, dissolve it in it, reserve that which is dissolved in hot ashes.

2.

Rx. Of the best Gold, laminated very thinly z 8 . dissolve it apart in a jar-glasse in z i . of Aqua Regis. Let it stand.

3.

Rx. Of purged Mercury z iii . dissolve it in a well luted glass body upon warm ashes, pouring on it one pound of Aqua Regis. Put these three dissolutions into a well luted cu-curbit, still it a sixth or seventh time in hot sand per Alembicum; that which is di-still'd must alwaies be put on againe. At last increase the fire, and let all come over. Then take out the remaining matter, and reduce
it

it to an Alcohol on a stone, and reverberate it under a muffle, rule it with a gentle fire; the Mercury will look black, and then of severall colours. Continue the reverberation, and rubifye it, and let all the spirit of Aqua Regis be gone. Then wash it with warm water, to take off all its saltness. Pulverise this Mercury well, poure on it of the best rectified spirit of Wine, let it stand over it three fingers; Standing in a warm place for three daies, and shake three times a day, then separate it.

At last poure on the pulverised Mercury of the best distill'd Rose-water, aromatized with Mosch, let it stand also in a warm place for three daies, shaking it thrice a day, separate gently unto a driness, it will be a concin præcipitated Aquila, alias, a purging mercurial essence.

Rubedo of Antimony.

First, let the Tartar be well calcined, to acquire to it an acrimony; then let it be dissolv'd in warme water. Poure out the water, the earth will settle to the bottom: If any acrimony should yet be in the Tartar, then poure water on again, which being separated parated must be put to the other, which must be continued as long as there is any acrimony in it: Put away the dead earth. These gathered waters must be boiled away, there remaineth a sharp and fiery salt in the bottom.

Rx. Of this salt z iii. boile it in a pint of water, put to it of crude Antimony z β . boile it well in a pann, as hard eggs are boiled, and the water be clear: If the matter congealeth, looking like a red gelly, put to it a sufficient quantity of distill'd Vinegar, separate the Tartar and all malignity of Antimony from the redness, and dissolve it. That redness of Antimony setleth to the bottom, Filter it in paper, the redness of Antimony abides about the Paper. Dulcifie this redness by pouring on warm water, and take off all superfluous impurities, let it settle, the redness being on the bottome, separate the water. Then exiccate on quick coales: its dose is halfe a graine.

Of the oyle of wax, which is like a Balsame in curing of wounds.

REcip. Of new oderiferous wax lb ii.
melt it in a pan gently, then put it into another vessel fill'd with the best wine, and very hot, let it be cold, gather it with your hand, and press it hard, melt it again, and thus hot poure it in Wine, and thus doe seven times. The last time being melted, add of tile-meal M. iii. Mingle it well being cool'd, put it in body with an Alembick, lute it well, that nothing may expire. The lute being dryed, set it in a sand capel, make a gentle fire under it for nine or ten houres.
At first there comes over a phlegmatick
water of a citrin colour, when it hath done distilling, remove the receiver, keep the Citrin-water safe in a glass: Then apply another receiver to the Alembick, and increase the fire by degrees: At first the drops
fall muddy, which being settled in the receiver, congeale like butter, or a gelly. At last the following drops look of gold colour,
which congeale not, but keep in a liquid substance. At the sight hereof change your receiver,

receiuer, that these golden drops be not mingled with the other, and must be receiued apart. And this is the true oyle of wax, which keeps liquid for ay. Continue your distilling with the fire increased, which forcing fire must be kept for eighteen houres. At last more muddy drops will fall, which when you see it, then change your receiuer presently to receive the feces, which are liquid also.

A dissolved Unicorne.

TAKE prepared Pearles, poure on them Vineger, seven times distill'd our way, and dissolve in hot ashes. Abstract afterward the Vineger in a Balmy, and if but few Pearles, put them in a jar-glass, and evaporate in warm ashes, afterward poure on raine-water once distill'd, and evaporate, continue it, till the water and lowre tast be gone. At last, dissolve this powder of Pearles with rectified Spirit of Wine, and make use of it.

Act.

Acetum Philosophorum.

R Ecip, lb viii. of the best Vineger, distill lb iiii of it per Alembick; adde to these quart i. of purified Salniter, let the Salniter
 be well dissolved in it, then distill in Sand strongly, that the Spirit may ascend and mixe with the Acetum. Take of this Acetum as much as you will, add Bugloss to it, call'd otherwise the herbe of Paris P v. put it in a violl, add to it well wash'd Mercury P i.
 set it in digestion for xvi days or more, you
 shal see the effect. This Acetum dissolveth al.

Narcotick and diaphoretick Antimony.

R Ecip. Of Antimony lb i. as much of purged Sal-Peter, calcine it circularly in a high pot, increasing the fire by degrees for three or foure houres; then calcine againe with Salniter, for some houres give a very strong fire, that the pot be red hot. Take out the Antimony, beat it, dissolve it in water, if any of the salt be left, filter and keep it back, and wash it. Dry the remainder, and reverberate for some foure houres, then you have a very white powder. Its dose is from
 gr. ii. to vii or ix. exceeding effectuell in Ter-stan and Quartan Agues.

Tare

Tartar.

THE liquor of Tartar and its Succus is thus separated: The Tartar is washed severall times in common warm water, leaving no impure dregs in it, at last it must be washed in warm Wine; it must be dried at the Sun, and reduced to a powder, put it in a glasse, lute it and distill in open fire; the junctures of the glasses must be well guarded, and the receiver must be very large. The first liquor that comes, is stinking, which is rectified in a cellar in wet sand, and the luccus is rectified with distill'd Vineger in a retort in open fire. Then draw it with the the Acetum, the drops come either red or citrin, according as the Tartar was, which in a funible must be separated, and thus the Acetum receiveth the Empyreuma into the oyle, and the oyl succeedeth in a golden colour without any stink. Use:

Rx. Of this Preparatum ℥ i of the volatile oyle of Vitriol ℥ iii . of aromatized Aquavitz, ℥ v .

These, being mix'd, are circulated for a moneth; it is given in Wine ℥ i . or more, according to the persons condition.

Tartar cureth the Lues Venerea, the obstructions structions in guts, the rising of the mother by sweating, and all o ther evils.

Liquor of Tartar.

BEing given daily three times, is very good in the Palsy, it penetrateth the whole body, strengtheneth the same, which ought to be in this disease. It cureth all manner of Jaundice, joined with the venereall disease. It rectifyeth monthly courses; resisteth Leprosie at the beginning of it. Being taken with oyle of Mercury, cureth the Dropsie by Urine.

Oyle of Dwarfse Elder.

R*Ecip.* Seeds of Ebulus well cleansed lb iij or liij, beate them well in a Morter, bringe all into a paste, put it into a Kettle, adde a sufficient quantity of River water to it, let it stand infused for 24 houres, then boyle it, let your first fire be gentle, and increase the fire by degrees, continue the boyling of it, that all the scum be gone: This scum must be gathered with a skimmer, and all the oyle swimming on it: All this you put into a long glasse, let it settle, thus warm for two or three daies, there appeareth a green transparent oyle, unctuous, settled to the bottom under that scum, and if the oyle doe not separate well from the scum, then take it together, mingle it in warm water, let it boyle a little ; afterward put it in a glasse, within few daies the oyle will settle, take off the scumm warily, and gather the settled green oyle, and set the scum apart, let it yeeld the oyle it hath among it. Use of this oyle a little quantity against all manner of paines caused by a cold distemper, in nervous symptomes and Arthritick paines. The manner of its use is : Take six or seven drops of this oyle, apply it warm'd to the place affected, then preiently the sharp pains will be allaid.

The

Pe
of Ag
tyr

The judgement and experience of

Doctor

GEORGE PHÆDRO

of Rodock, in some Chymical Medicaments.

In the Herculean disease or Epilepsie.

used against this disease the sweet oyle of Vitriol, per se without any other addition, very successfully. For the Dropsie I used the rectified essence of Hellebore.

Against Consumption, a dissolutum of Pearles of the Indian oysters.

Against the Stone I used the atereall juice of Crystals.

Against barrennesse, the red extract of Satyrium of Erithonzum.

K 2 A

Against the venereall disease, the sweet oile of Mercury. Against the Gout, Phadro did use that excellent and noble Corallois, that is, the Chymicall Hermaphrodite, and took it three times inwardly, and caused himselfe to be annointed with the rectified Spirit of Tartar, and made it penetrate: In a fortnights space he was healed. He was then also troubled with a great swelling in his legs, accompanied with a fervent rednesse. Against Cancer he used butter of Saturne, Against the Cramp and great Convulsions. He cured one, who was tormented with a running paine of his members, with a purple colour'd tumour joyned, running from one place into another, he used no other medicament, then twice the sanguin essence of Antimony. The Patient was recovered the fifth day.

In contractures and Consumption.

FOR the expelling of these diseases he ministred the sweet dissolution of Microcosme, ministring it inwardly ten times, outwardly he annointed the party with Badgers grease, mixed with the Philosophers oyl. These parties were cured within three weeks.

Against the Imposthume in the head.

IN this occult disease, which puts the Physician to great troubles, he gave to take of Ophirizum, which being taken, a Histericall obstruction was opened, and the Imposthume of the head broken; the patient was healed in a moneths time.

Against the Venerall disease and Pox.

ONE was molested with such a Pockiness, whose teeth were loose, and troubled with great paines in the joints, the joints began to look black, full of scabs and contractures. He cured the party with the oyl of Mercury, mix'd with mans grease, and the oyle of Arcentides, with this every other day he annointed these Knots; and he annointed or rubb'd the teeth with the aromatized Oleum Moschocarum or of Mules. in fourteen dayes the party was recovered unto health.

Against the Dropſie.

VHen I intended to cure this diſeaſe with Catarticum Mercuriale, and to ſtrengthen the Patient, I reſtored the Patient very well with diſtill'd water of Cinnamon, which came over in xxiv hours time, or the Diacubebe of Seplaſij, which was miniſtred in Rhois of the moſt vertuous and much praiſed eſſence of Gold in Wine of Pomegranates.

Against the gripings and torments in the belly.

He uſed the anodin Sulphur, of the Vitrifioll of Venus and Mars, reduced unto a more ſublime degree.

Against the Jaundies.

In this diſeaſe my Panchimagogum is of great efficacy, the extract of Rhubarb, the Spirit of Tartar: The Stigian liquor: All which are ſingular myſteries for this diſeaſe.

Against Ulcers and open sores.

THE sweet oyle of Saturn, with Calphuncleum.

Against excrescencies of the body.

Against the great scales and excrescencies of the body, which attract to them almost all the alimentary substance, whereby the body commeth into decay, he used the ointment of Silum of Amianthum Asbestinum, or Botrochois, joyning thereto Chalcantum, annoiated, and tyed to the places.

FINIS.

V

to st tient
mon
or t mini muc
Pom

H

a mo

I

gre
Spir
whic

44

